Acheson Fears Red Aggressive Moves In 1952

Secretary Lists Five Danger Spots Needing "Constant Vigilance"

NEW YORK (AP)—Any peace in Korea may be followed by some new "Communist treachery" there, Secretary of State Acheson says, or be offset by a major Red aggression in Southeast Asia or other border area.

That prospect was held out by the Secretary last night in a year-end foreign policy summary and New Year forecast in which he told the nation that this is no time "to let down at all in vigilance, purpose and effort."

"It is hard to say that any one year is more critical than another," Acheson told a meeting of Jewish war veterans, "but it seems to me certain that we will have it in our power in 1952 to take action, or to withhold action, which will have a decisive effect upon the cause of peace."

Decide on German Peace
The great decisions to be made in the defense of Western Europe, Acheson said, concern a new Atlantic alliance mobilization schedule, the making of a peace contract with West Germany, and the organization of Western European forces to include German units. He predicted action on all these in the first months of 1952.

In addition, he listed outside the European area five danger spots beginning with Korea and requiring constant "vigilance" in the new year.

The critical other points listed were Indo-China, Burma, Egypt and Iran.

He gave this summary:
1. Korea—even if an armistice is signed, he said, "We shall have to remain on guard against a renewal of Communist treachery." Furthermore, there will remain the economic task of rebuilding the land and the political task of unifying the country "on a basis that provides a decent chance for the Koreans to live as free men."

In discussing the Korean situation, Acheson declared, "We shall not rest until our men who are being held prisoner are released. . . . and shall stand firm against any settlement that rewards aggression, or compromises the security of the Republic of Korea."

2. Indochina—during 1951, the Communist threat in Indochina "has been contained" by the joint efforts of the French army and anti-Communist native people plus American aid. However, there are "dangerous signs" of further Communist aggression there.

3. Burma—here, too, there are signs of further trouble from Red aggression, requiring the United States to be alertly on guard.

4. Egypt—the crisis over the defense of the Suez Canal, brought on by differences between Egypt and Britain over the presence of British troops along the waterway, creates one of two danger spots in the Middle East.

5. Iran—this is the other Middle East danger spot and like the Suez crisis offers, in Acheson's view, "dangerous opportunities for exploitation by the Kremlin."

Against these uncertainties and potential perils of the new year, Acheson pictured the past year as one in which great progress was made in freeing nations and strengthening the free nations, especially in the north Atlantic area.

And he declared "there are grounds for confidence, but there are no grounds for complacency."

2-Cent Postcards Replace Penny Ones; Parcel Rates Up

The bells which ring in the new year tonight also toll the passing of an American institution—the penny postcard.

At 12:01 a.m., Jan. 1, the price becomes two cents. The boost, along with others in postal rates, is aimed at producing 120 million dollars a year more for the financially-frail Post Office Department.

This is the second time since its birth in 1873 that the post card is being picked up to two cents. It was that way for 20 months during World War I, returning to a penny in 1919.

A similar thing happened to letter rates—from two to three and back to two—but it was three cents again in 1919 and ever since. No letter increase is planned this time.

The Post Office, for the next 60 days, will take it easy on people who mail penny postals. Cards postmarked before midnight go through, of course, but later ones return to the sender, if known. If not known or if time is involved, they are delivered postage due.

Nearly four billion penny cards were used this year, compared with 30 million in 1919.

Parcel Post Changes
Other changes effective tomorrow:

Parcel post—reduction in maximum weight and size of packages handled between any first class domestic post offices, from 100 inches in combined length and girth to 77 1/2, and from 70 pounds to 30 and 20, depending on zones; also, a half-cent increase for third class books and catalogs, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and plants not on special bulk rate.

Special delivery—higher fees, from 15 and 45 cents to 20 and 60. Domestic registered mail—higher fees, from 25 cents and $1.50 to 30 cents and $1.75.

Domestic insured mail—higher fees, from 5 and 30 cents to 5 and 35. Domestic collect-on-delivery mail—higher fees, from 20 and 60 cents to 30 cents and $1.

Effective April, second class mail—newspapers, magazines and other printed matter, will cost 10 per cent more. Additional 10 per cent hikes are scheduled for these on April 1, 1953, and April 1, 1954.

Troubled World Greets New Year

A troubled world greets 1952 tonight with hopes and prayers that it truly will be a "Happy New Year" for everyone of its 366 days—and not just tomorrow.

Throughout the world there will be merry celebrations to "ring in the new, ring out the old." But for many, the observance will be one of prayer at traditional church watch night ceremonies.

Infant 1952 will inherit the cold and hot war cares of old 1951, and its leap-year calendar will have a few added events of its own, particularly the United States presidential election.

New Yorkers will welcome the new year tonight at theaters, cabarets, and Times Square, where tens of thousands mass annually to cheer at the stroke of midnight. Others will usher in 1952 at the city's churches.

Prices at many night clubs have been boosted for tonight's celebration.

Driver Fined After Car Plunges Over Culvert

Herbert N. Fox, 65, of Alliance arrested at 2:10 this morning on Jennings Ave., and charged by police with reckless operation, was fined $20 and costs today by Mayor Harry M. Vincent.

According to police, Fox, driving west on Second St., failed to stop at the intersection of Second St., and Jennings Ave., causing his car to cross the street and plunge over the unguarded culvert there into Buttermilk Run. Fox was uninjured but the car was badly damaged.

2 Persons Hurt In Area Traffic

Alliance Boy Badly Injured On Route 30

A one-year-old boy was seriously injured and a Salem woman received minor bruises and lacerations in the two district highway accidents reported by the State Highway Patrol over the weekend.

William Papey Jr., of Alliance sustained a possible skull fracture and multiple lacerations of the head when his father, aged 39, lost control of his car on Route 30, six miles south of Lisbon, at 9 a.m. Sunday, causing it to crash into the side of a bridge.

The boy was taken to Alliance City Hospital.

At 2:20 p.m. Sunday a car driven by Joseph Loutzenhiser, 31, of 156 Ohio Ave., struck the rear of a dump truck which was stopped on Route 164, seven miles south of Lisbon. Mrs. Helen Loutzenhiser, 32, sustained minor lacerations and bruises and was treated by a Lisbon doctor.

Neither Mr. Loutzenhiser nor the driver of the truck, Michael V. Beiling, 44, of RD 4, Lisbon, was injured.

Churchill Enroute To United States

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (AP)—The liner Queen Mary, carrying Prime Minister Winston Churchill to America for talks with President Truman, put out to sea three days late today.

Delayed first by the heaviest Atlantic storms in years and then by a balky anchor, the $1,000-ton luxury vessel finally got away at 11:58 a.m.

She originally had been scheduled to sail Friday with her 1,104 passengers.

Churchill and his party of 35, including Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, had been waiting on board since 45 minutes after Saturday midnight.

In a New Year's message Churchill declared 1952 "presents us with momentous challenges and opportunities."

Bars Must Close On Time, Is Order

Ohio's bars are going to close at 2:30 a.m. tonight—New Year's or no—says the state liquor law enforcement chief.

Anthony A. Rutkowski, the chief, says all his 88 state agents will be on duty and that the laws will be enforced just as they have been the other two year end holidays since he became chief.

That means night clubs and late-closing taverns will have to stop the sales and consumption of liquor by 2:30 a.m. and that they won't be able to start again until 5:30 a.m. All other kinds of bars must stop by 1 a.m.

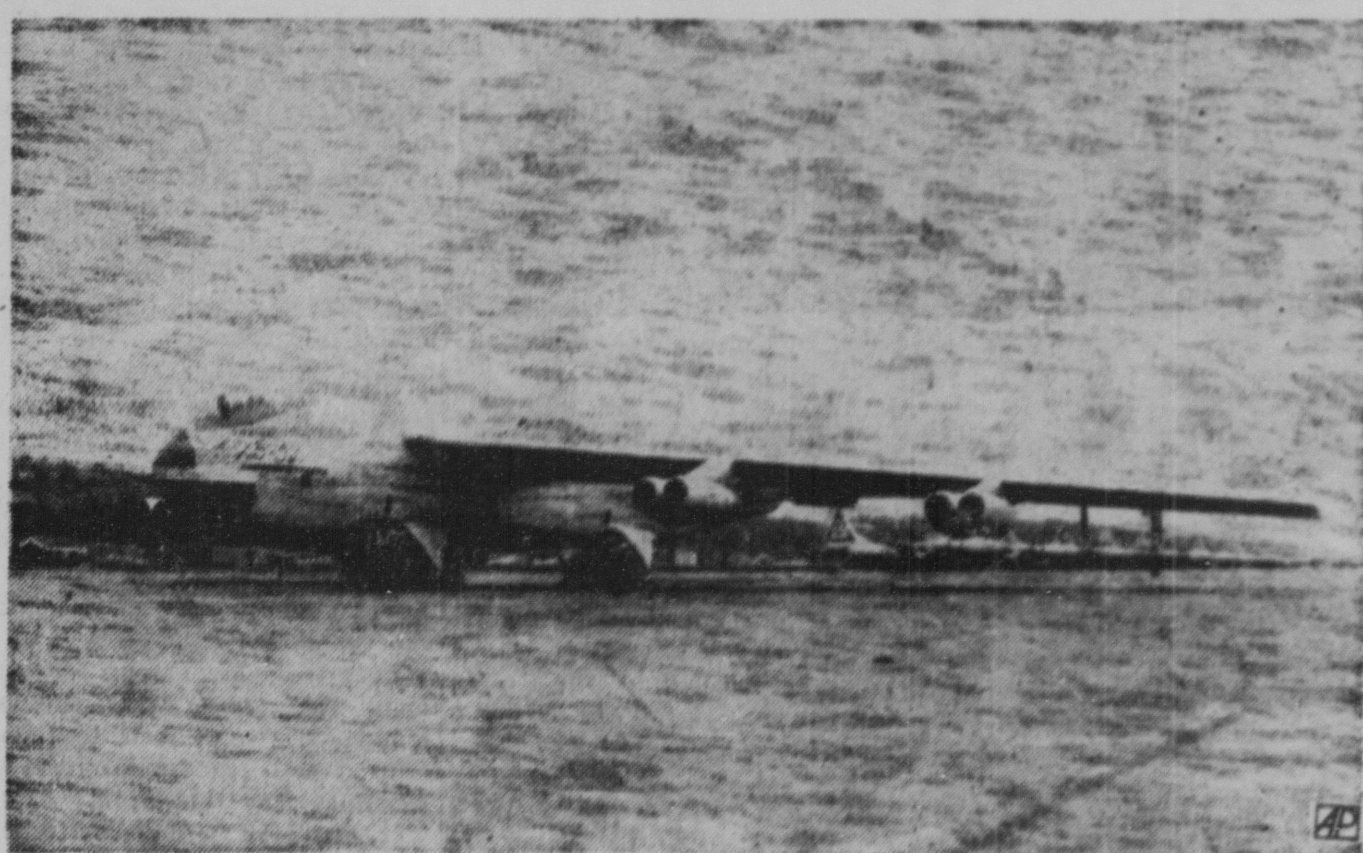

Prior to Rutkowski's order the unwritten policy was to wink at the closing regulations once a year—on New Year's.

Mansfield Woman Shot, Ex-Husband Questioned

MANSFIELD (INS)—Mansfield police today are questioning the ex-husband of Mrs. Lucille A. Chalker, 40-year-old mother, who was shot to death Sunday as she entered her home after visiting a downtown tavern.

The questioning began in Mansfield general hospital where the victim's former husband, Clarence Koellish, 54, is recovering from what police said was self-inflicted poisoning.

Police said Mrs. Chalker, mother of a 14-year-old daughter and member of a well-known Mansfield family, was divorced from Koellish ten days ago, after a six-month marriage. A former marriage also ended in divorce.

AIR FORCE RELEASES PHOTO OF BIG NEW BOMBER. The air force released this photograph of the Boeing XB-52, the air force's new long-range, eight jet heavy bomber in Washington. Air Secretary Thomas K. Finletter said the picture "shows the least possible amount of information that could be of value to any enemy" and was made public "inasmuch as engine run-up tests require that the aircraft be more exposed." The plane has been under camouflage since it was rolled out of the Boeing factory Nov. 29.

Intruder Jailed After Assault On Salem Man

Norman Edward Uptegraph, 39, of Freeport, Pa., is in City Jail today charged with "assault with intent to kill" on a warrant sworn out Sunday by Carson M. Marple of 510 Walnut St.

Marple told police that the man assaulted him in his home with a 22-caliber target pistol but that he disarmed the assailant and ejected him from his home before a shot was fired.

According to Marple, the stranger came to his house at 1:30 p.m. Sunday and told his wife, Mary, that he wanted to see her husband.

Upon being told that he wasn't home, the stranger left, only to return again at 3:15 p.m. This time he "practically forced his way into the house" and Mrs. Marple awakened her husband who was taking a nap in an upstairs bedroom.

Mr. Marple said he led the stranger into the kitchen and when they were seated, the man revealed his name. At the same time, Marple reported, he withdrew the pistol from his pocket saying, "You catch on fast, don't you?"

Marple said he disarmed the man and threw him out of the house. Mrs. Marple then called the police who arrived immediately but could find no trace of the stranger.

Later that evening the police were called by Uptegraph's wife, a waitress in a local restaurant, who informed them that her husband had telephoned her from a Youngstown hotel, saying he was staying there overnight as his car had broken down.

Youngstown police were asked to pick up the man and he was returned to Salem at 10:50 yesterday. Uptegraph is being held in City Jail pending further investigation.

Art Teacher Hired For High School

Joseph Stadlander of Mantua, O., a graduate of Kent State University's Department of Fine Arts, has been hired as art teacher at Salem High School, Supt. E. S. Kerr said today. He will assume his duties Wednesday.

Mr. Stadlander will fill a vacancy created when Mrs. Ethel Headrick, art instructor for 18 years at the high school, died last Nov. 18.

No one has been found to replace Donald Mumford of Beaver Falls, Pa., history instructor and journalism advisor, who resigned due to the distance he had to travel from his home to Salem. Mr. Mumford's resignation was approved Nov. 5 and a substitute teacher has been filling in.

Salem Man's Car Kills Doe Near Berlin Center

Mahoning County Game Warden Earl Resler today reported a Salem man's car killed a deer on Route 534, two miles south of Berlin Center.

A doe was killed at 12:30 p.m. Sunday when struck by a car driven by Richard E. Gross of Franklin St., after it ran into the path of his auto. The vehicle was badly damaged in the front and had to be towed away.

Guided Missiles May Replace Big Air Force Bombers Soon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States may be starting to build the last of the man-flown bombers.

When these big planes reach the obsolete age, a new generation of transoceanic guided missiles and pilotless aircraft are expected to be ready to take over the long range aerial bombardment jobs.

But, airmen familiar with planning for the future, told a reporter today that doesn't mean the current new heavyweight bombers will be out of date soon.

For one thing, a lot of bugs have yet to be worked out of guided missiles—like how to steer them over the horizon and make them blow up the right target.

The Air Force has two heavy jet bomber type projects—the Boeing B-52, the first model of which is completed and undergoing tests, and the Consolidated Vultee B-60.

There are several arguments advanced against keeping on building bigger and bigger bombers, including these:

1. Heavy bombers are getting too costly in money, manpower and materials.

2. Guided missiles, when improvements are attained in guidance systems, can do everything the heavy, strategic bomber does at less cost in manpower, materials and perhaps, in a major war, in money.

B-52 To Last Long Time
As combat planes go, the B-52 will last a long time (perhaps five or ten years) because the aerodynamic design of the airframe appears to be about the maximum that can be expected.

The standard jets are growing progressively more powerful and faster. Of equal importance, designers are gradually cutting down the fuel-thirst of the engines, getting more mileage out of them.

Recently, in a report to stockholders, Frederick B. Rentschler, chairman of United Aircraft Corporation, claimed that the Pratt & Whitney J-57 engine going into the B-52 had a thrust "comparable with or superior to any engine in production or ready for production." He had mentioned among other engines the British Sapphire with a 7,200-pound thrust rating.

Despite the optimism about longevity of the big bombers, no one disregards the ascendancy of

19 Cadets On Craft Lost In Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Nineteen cadets from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point were among the 28 persons on a military transport plane missing 18 hours after radioing for landing instructions.

Bad weather throughout Arizona today hampered the search for the big C-47 plane and an F-51 fighter plane which also has been missing since yesterday afternoon.

Only heavy aircraft have taken off for the early search with the lighter craft being held back pending better flying conditions. Rain, clouds and high winds were reported in the search area. It was believed the big transport may have gone off course into the rugged mountain area northeast of here.

At Hamilton Air Force base in California, it was reported the cadets were among the 28 aboard. They presumably were returning to the academy after Christmas with their families in northern California.

Hamilton said the plane carried five other military passengers and a crew of four.

March air force base diverted three big planes to Phoenix from another search at Red Bluff, Calif., where a military transport with eight aboard vanished Wednesday.

No word from either the C-47 or the F-51 was received during the night.

Weather Slows Pennsylvania Hunt For 40

Craft Unreported After Pittsburgh Take-off Saturday

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Murky weather hindered a great land-air-water search today for a missing transport plane with 40 occupants which disappeared Saturday without a trace.

The twin-engined C-46, owned by Continental Charters, Inc., of Miami, left Pittsburgh Saturday night at 9:47 p.m. on a non-scheduled flight to Buffalo with seven crew members and 33 passengers.

The silvery ship, purchased from the government about six months ago, had a three-hour gasoline supply for a 190-mile trip expected to take one hour.

Continental President John A. Belding arrived from Miami to join the search, declaring:

"I'm hopeful we will find the plane and that everybody will be alive. I don't know what could have happened."

Capt. Alexander Wozniak of the U. S. Air Force is in charge of the aerial search. He had 180 planes at his disposal, including military and civil air patrol craft.

Capt. Wozniak directed planes to cover a 100-mile wide path, 50 miles on each side of the intended route. Royal Canadian Air Force planes were ordered to scour Canadian territory near the U.S. border.

A Coast Guard plane from Salem, Mass., and Coast Guard boats were told to cover Lake Erie in case the missing aircraft went down in those chill, choppy waters. An Air Force amphibian, manned by a crew from Westover Field in Massachusetts, was assigned to flights back and forth over the C-46's planned course. Visibility over much of the course was only 800 feet when the search began.

Forest Area Searched
More than 300 persons aided state police and foresters in a ground search of the area at the southern tip of the Allegheny National Forest about 18 miles north of Brookville, Pa., and 100 miles north of Pittsburgh.

Gordon M. Mathews, assistant to the chief of the investigation division of the Civil Aeronautics Board, heads the federal investigation of the plane's disappearance.

Continental Charters was ordered to halt all takeoffs from Buffalo airport.

Wild rumors the plane had been found hampered search parties. Hundreds of curiosity seekers jammed roads about 100 miles north of Pittsburgh after one report.

The newest clue being investigated is by Robert Hawthorne of Titusville, Pa. He reported seeing the lights of a low-flying plane at 11 p.m. Saturday six miles from the New York state border and the general aerial route from Pittsburgh to Buffalo.

Most of the 33 passengers aboard the ship are from Pittsburgh. Included are three children, one only 14 months old.

There are two pilots, two co-pilots and three stewardesses aboard. Three of the crew members were "deadheading" to Syracuse, N. Y., to pick up another plane.

Not a word was heard from the ship after Pilot J. C. Weber of Miami reported his takeoff time from Pittsburgh.

MISSING PLANE'S ROUTE. Map locates the Pittsburgh to Buffalo route of a transport plane that is missing with 39 persons aboard.

Stocks Remained Strong In 1951

Prices Highest In More Than 21 Years

NEW YORK (AP)—The twin terrors of War and Inflation haunted Wall Street in 1951, but the Stock Market surmounted all fears and gave an excellent account of itself.

There were four notable peaks in prices, each followed by reactions. December found the markets recovering from a drop that started in October with prices around the highest average level in more than 21 years.

But despite the buffeting the market took during the year, the prevailing December sentiment in Wall Street was bullish, which means optimistic, for the long pull.

The Stock Market from first to last had the war in Korea on its mind. It exhibited strange behavior at times, falling all over itself when there was a prospect of peace and a little later falling again when it looked as though the war would become more intense. And it also advanced on the prospects of war and peace. Market analysis rationalized these antics this way, and you can take your choice:

War means more government spending and all prices pushed higher by inflationary pressures (bullish), but war also means heavier Federal taxation both on personal and corporate incomes and tighter controls to combat inflation (bearish).

Peace means a change in pace in rearmament spending and possible deflation (bearish), but peace also means lighter taxation and an end of controls (bullish).

Tax Takes Bite

Taxation to run the war in Korea and finance rearmament in Europe and at home took its biggest bite out of corporate profits in the third quarter. The New York Stock Exchange reported a 30 per cent drop in the third quarter from a year ago in the profits of 325 listed companies. But for the first nine months profits of these companies were down less than 9 per cent.

For the year as a whole, the best guess was that profits would be down slightly under 1950. If it works out that way, the drop in corporate profits would be the first since 1942.

The general opinion is that the year's profits are fat enough to assure a continuation of high dividend payments.

The 1950-51 year-end rally carried well into February, when it ran into unfounded Korean peace rumors together with Washington administration calls for higher taxes and tighter controls.

Prices were somewhat depressed in March but advanced through April to the second peak in May. As the markets advanced, topped over in the midst of optimism, fearfulness grew until things turned sharply in the fall. The fall also was in the nature of a technical reaction, customary after a rise.

In due course there was a recovery in May that ran smack into the Russian proposal late in June for a Korean cease-fire. The market break was sharp as traders reacted in fright over the possibility of a sudden change in American rearmament plans.

But the recovery was just as dramatic when the realization set in that in any event America would have to maintain its armed might for years to come.

The market kept right on going ahead with a slight reaction in August when some felt that the summer rally ought to have a breather. The boom continued until mid-October when The Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached $101.50, the highest point since Sept. 17, 1930.

For the next two weeks the market was on a one-way street—down. It steadied then and started to swing higher.

Bottle Yields 14,310 Pennies—Now In Bank

Mrs. Irene S. Beals of Columbus, daughter of Mrs. Susan Schmid of N. Broadway, had hundreds of Columbus residents interested in helping her solve the copper shortage.

Mrs. Beals had saved pennies for a year in a big 24 inches tall, 23 inches around bottle and decided to turn them into the bank because of the copper shortage. Her husband found they could hardly lift the bottle from the floor and they were afraid it would break.

A Columbus paper ran a story about it and phone calls telling them to get the pennies to the bank nearly drove them from their home.

The couple finally carefully hoisted the bottle into a car, carried it to a bank and the automatic counting machine there computed the couple saved 14,310 pennies, $143.10.

Council Hears Year's Report

Mayor To Name Commissioner

COLUMBIANA—Reports at the year-end meeting of council Friday evening showed that the village received through the police department during the present year $13,354, including parking meter receipts of $6,207 and $1,445 from State Highway Patrol cases, $6,406.80 from fines and forfeited bonds, and $684 from parking meter tickets.

Chief of Police R. G. Millen reported 54 accidents during 1951, two more than in 1950, and 361 arrests to date. Accidents included 20 two-car mishaps and two pedestrians hit. Arrests included 99 for speeding, 69 illegal passing, 15 ignoring stop light, eight ignoring stop sign, eight reckless driving and three drunken driving.

Chief Millen thanks officials for their co-operation during the year, which, he said, helped to make the good police record. He reported no extra traffic through town to this time from the Pennsylvania turnpike opening. A recent, 16-hour check, however, showed a total of 9,298 trucks and passenger cars crossing the public square.

Street Commissioner Craig Quigley reported that the new ash spreader for the street department has been received.

Council paid year-end bills for all departments, including $5 for each councilman for each of the 26 regular meetings he attended during the year.

Council to Meet

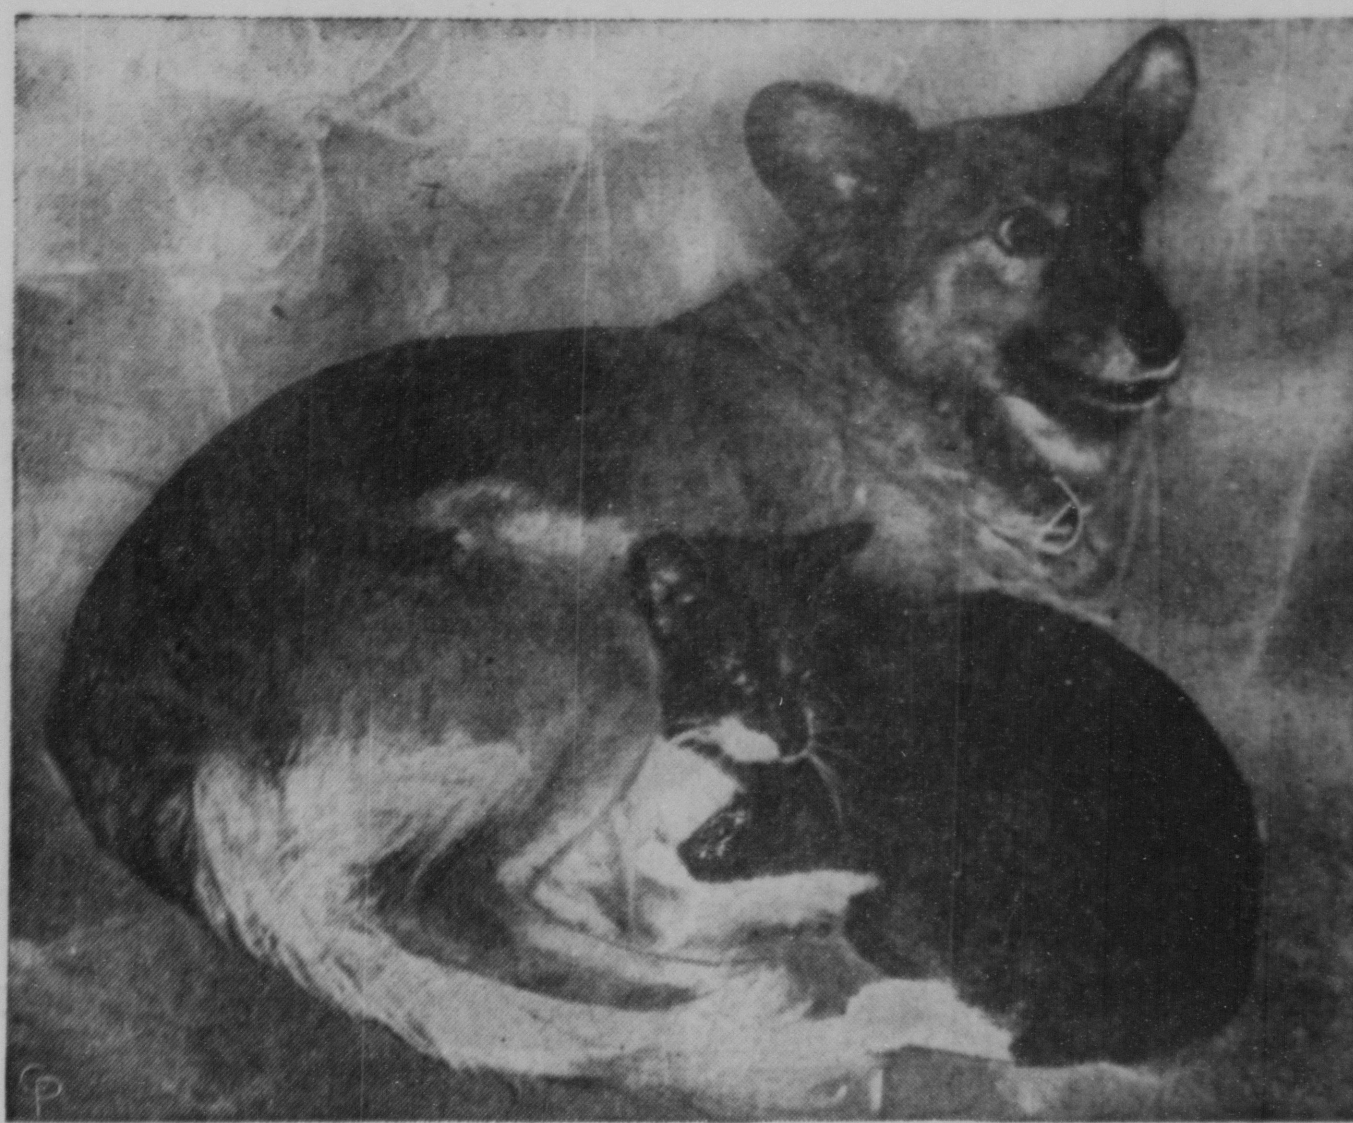

The new mayor, W. A. Thomas, and council elected to serve the next two years, will have their first meeting tomorrow evening. Three Republicans, Herbert Souder, Arthur Myers and Ray Snoko, will be new members of council, and two Democrats, Charles Fisher and Ray Spiker, and the line Republican member of the old council, Walter Miller, are the re-elected councilmen.

A tie between Spiker and Ollie Harold, Democrats, was settled by a coin toss. Of the remaining two members of the old council, Ernest Werner and Walter Crawford, Democrats, Werner was not a candidate for re-election.

Ray Snoko, one of the new councilmen, served on previous councils. The Republicans elected all four of their council candidates, two places on the Republican slate having been vacant. Mayor Thomas, a Democrat, was elected as an independent candidate.

Mayor to Select

Interest centers in Mayor Thomas' selection of a street commissioner. He has given no hint of his choice, which will not be known until he submits his nomination to council tomorrow night. Thomas had been with the street department about 20 years, nearly all that time as street commissioner. He was not re-appointed two years ago when the new mayor, E. L. Calvin, appointed Craig Quigley of the street department in his stead. Mayor Thomas will re-appoint Attorney John L. Hutson as solicitor. Council committees are also to be named tomorrow evening.

The three hold-over members from the old council are understood to be favorable to the building code, which was drafted months ago and has been under consideration since, and to the proposed addition to the east end of city hall to accommodate additional fire equipment. Several contractors appeared before the old council at its request and gave opinions on provisions for the proposed building code.

Alliance Council Raises Court Wages

ALLIANCE—City council, at a special meeting Saturday, approved legislation preparing for the expansion of Alliance Municipal Court by granting salary raises for the judge, clerk and court bailiff.

The session adjourned 30 minutes before inauguration ceremonies for the new administration.

With the new court scheduled to take in Paris Township, which includes Minerva, and Marlboro Township in addition to Washington and Lexington townships, the council set Judge Harry Wykoff's salary at $5,214.31.

The city will pay $2,760.45 and the remainder will be paid by the four townships and the villages of Minerva and Lima. An increase also was given the clerk who will receive a total salary of $3,900 a year, the city paying $2,064.65.

The court bailiff will receive a salary of $3,380 and a $75 a month car allowance with the city paying $1,789.37.

Taking advantage of the meeting, members of council gave second readings to ordinances introduced at the Dec. 17 meeting providing for $36,000 in pay increases for all appointed city employees.

British Paying 1st Installment On Loan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today collects its first installment on the 1946 British loan of 3½ billion dollars.

The payment, the first to become due over the next 50 years, will amount to almost 139 million dollars. The British owe the U.S. an additional $602,899,000 for World War II aid, and this has been added to the 1946 loan at 2 per cent interest.

Britain had a choice of waiving interest payment amounting to 87 million dollars, but she chose to pay.

When the 1946 loan was extended, U.S. officials predicted that by 1951 Britain would be able to start repaying it without hardship.

However, the British now are beset by new and critical financial problems. Prime Minister Churchill, calling for even more austerity, has ordered a one billion dollar cut in British purchases abroad to cope with a soaring trade deficit.

Today's payment probably will be made without fanfare through the federal reserve bank in New York City.

Next Week's Groceries

SINCE United Steelworkers and Harold Stassen are both talking about guaranteed annual wages, it's probable that the rest of us will be talking about them in the near future, too. The certainty of being able to pay for next week's groceries is an intriguing topic.

There are some students of politics and unionism who predict that this will be the talking point of the next generation or so, the same as the eight-hour day was early in this century. If that proves to be true, there will be no shortage of information on the subject.

Unfortunately, there will be no shortage of misinformation, either. Some of the likeliest morsels of misinformation are these:

That guaranteed annual wages are something that politicians might obtain for wage earners. The truth in this respect is that the problem of wage stability is entirely economic. There isn't an employer in the world who wouldn't jump at the chance to stabilize his working force by stabilizing wages if he, in turn, could stabilize his schedules of production. The worst thing that could happen to wage stabilization would be the intervention of politicians.

Pro-Russian, Anti-Communist

GEORGE F. KENNAN will go to Moscow to represent the United States, and this country could not find an abler man.

Kennan is a career diplomat who has specialized in Russian affairs. He speaks the Russian language, is steeped in Russian history and has a kindred feeling for Russian customs and characteristics.

He has no use whatever for the dictatorship of Russia and is credited with authorship of the policy of containment being followed by the anti-Communist bloc under the leadership of the United States. It is his idea that if the Communist conspiracy can be contained long enough it will die on the vine.

Kennan is more of a philosopher than a jingoist. He knows there are many things which cannot be changed quickly, many which cannot be changed at all, and that the rise of the Asiatic peoples is one thing which cannot be changed at all.

But he does believe it is possible for nationalities to live together on a basis of respect for one another's rights and that this basis can be secured by a balance of military power.

The Kremlin will not get along with Kennan, which is all right. It is his job to understand the problem which the Kremlin poses, not to soft-soap the dictators who run the Communist conspiracy.

On The Hook

THE CHINESE and Korean Communists could not have made a more fruitful 30 days than they enjoyed up to Dec. 27 while negotiators fumbled for the terms of an agreement to end the war in Korea.

The Communists' real objective always has been to weaken occidental influence in Asia. It is the same objective which the Japanese hoped to reach 11 years ago. While it is convenient to believe now that the Japanese failed, the fact is they succeeded.

They proved that the white man could be pushed about with impunity in Asia. Other Asiatics got the idea. The British have left India. Occidental influence has been whittled to a minimum in China. In Japan, the United States is busily buttering up the defeated Japanese so they will be eager to fight their own race, if necessary.

In Korea, negotiators are droning on and on in conversations which easily could be stretched out for years, while the Asiatic Communists consolidate their new power and gloat over their ability to keep the United States on the hook until they get ready to let it down—if that ever happens.

The greatest defeat of the Korean war for the U.N. and the United States may be the negotiations entered into the vain hope of ending it.

Dangerous Year

By DANIEL DE LUCE

War In '52 Would Be Blunder, Ex-Red Says

HAMBURG, Germany
THE STOCKY man with shrewd eyes was a major in the Soviet army until two years ago.

At Potsdam, in the occupation era, he served on the staff of Russia's greatest military governors: Zhukov, Sokolovsky, and Cuikov.

He recalls vividly the secret briefing which General of the Army Vassily Chuikov, hero of Stalingrad, delivered at his headquarters in 1949 after the end of the Berlin blockade.

"Our present forces in Germany are strong enough to sweep to the English channel. But we do not have the order," the general said.

The former major, V. M. Denisov, shrugs at the memory: "I believe 1952 will be the most dangerous year of all," he says.

"The tension is near the breaking point. But if war comes, it will be because of blunders. Soviet policy is not to launch a sudden attack—but to wait, grow stronger, to let the West plunge into an economic catastrophe."

"Chuikov did not receive the order to attack in 1949. I am convinced he will not receive it in 1952. But war may come. The tension is big."

DENISOV, in the eyes of the Soviet government, is a deserter and traitor. In West Germany, he is tolerated as one of thousands of unwanted refugees.

But it wasn't politics that drove him to forsake career and country. It was something more deeply human.

He did it for a German woman. They fell in love during the fiery conquest of Germany and were married secretly afterward in defiance of military command.

He saved her, their young daughter, and his German mother-in-law when he deserted. He smuggled them into the British sector of Berlin. Together, they were flown out to West Germany. "Our barracks at Potsdam were ringed by barbed wire—but what is that?" Denisov says, smiling faintly.

He was born at Gorky, near Moscow. He can not remember when a Czar ruled. His ideas were shaped under the Soviet system.

Two years in the strange west have not shaken his fundamental concepts. He is a trained administrator but he can not yet find a job in German business.

The Denisov family of four receives a dole of 96 marks ($22.84) a month from a little north German town, near Hamburg, where they have won refuge.

HIS NEW LIFE is hard, but he has his loved ones and they are inseparable. He has guts. Most Soviet army deserters hid their identity and live underground for fear of Red reprisals. Denisov knows about 70 in North Germany.

He is trying to organize them publicly. Then he intends to invite Western authorities to assist in an economic program of assimilating these men without a country.

"Perhaps that will lead to more Soviet army desertions," he says. "As it is now, those who dare to come over here find themselves going back to certain death rather than continue in such misery." He appraises his own future coldly.

"As long as there is a Soviet government, they will shoot me if they catch me. But I am not one of those who fool themselves that the government will fall in peacetime by a palace revolution or other internal revolt. It is too strong."

"The people do not know how bad the government is. It is all they know."

"But the West should not fool itself that the people will not fight. One shot and the people will unite behind the government as they did in 1941. They will be led to believe they are defending their fatherland against aggression."

"The West should not judge Soviet military strength by the number of shoes or suits a Soviet citizen can buy in a year."

"I listen to propaganda broadcasts to the Soviet people from the west by foreigners and old emigrants. Their accents are odd and their words archaic."

"The Soviet government is waiting for the west to spend itself into exhaustion. But you tell me: Will the West find a way out of the dilemma of war or economic collapse?"

Santa Slipped Up Again

By TRUMAN TWILL

IF ANYONE wants to know, we did not get a red tractor for Christmas, nor any other color. But a few days before Christmas, after we already had been chided by a fellow whose tractor was orange, for wishing we could have a red one, we heard from another fellow whose tractor was green. He was hurt, too.

In due time we may hear from the other colors. The gray tractor people are bound to say something, since they have gone in for almost a total absence of color. And surely there will be some kind of reaction from the yellow contingent.

But right now we want to say a little more about wanting to have a red tractor.

This would be a plaything, on exactly the same basis as an electric train or any other toy. But do not fall into the error of thinking there is anything peculiar about wanting a plaything of this nature.

Last summer one of the best-known manufacturers of tractors (red ones) advertised a lightweight model in the New Yorker Magazine, with a sales message aimed squarely at people who can afford to own tractors as playthings.

A half hour's summer journey in the environs of any well-settled rural region will reveal one or more adults—usually men but sometimes women—playing with tractors.

It's a carryover from the fascination of toy machines which are the foundation of the toy business in our mechanized society. A half day's real work on a real tractor would knock the fascination out of all but a few extra-trugged individuals. But the rest of us can dream, can't we?

We can bat our eyes and lick our chops over these toys we'd like to possess. We can imagine ourselves hot-rodding up hill and down dale, wheeling our tractors expertly into position to tackle seemingly impossible tasks, then performing them with an airy wave of the hand.

We can promise ourselves that the first time we have that much money burning a hole in our pockets we'll blow ourselves to something we need as much as a mink needs a new coat.

We can be patient year after year, realizing in our lucid intervals that even if we had the tractors we wouldn't know what to do with them after the first hour.

That takes care of the red-tractor situation for this year. Probably next year, too, and the year after. But we didn't want to close the books on it without making it more widely known that just because a gent wants a red tractor as a plaything he is not necessarily bereft of his buttons.

There are millions of us, without even counting all the former little girls who used to play with mechanized toys and now would like to try out something more exciting than the prosaic automobile.

So They Say

We Americans must realize that the free East and the free West are not going to join hands to preserve our common freedom unless our hand is a hand of fellowship which clasps the hand of the Oriental as that of an equal. —John Foster Dulles, adviser to the State Dept.

Put your toy departments back in step with the religious significance of Christmas and with the Kefauver Crime Committee.

—Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, WCTU head, criticizing merchants for selling toy guns and outlaw costumes for children as Yuletide gifts.

No generation of Americans has talked so much about freedom as the present one and none has shown so great a readiness to abandon it. —Ernest O. Melby.

Out of the Same Jug

Our Gravest Dangers

By GEORGE S. BENSON

AS WE ENTER a new year grave problems and dangers confront our nation. The gravest danger of all, however, lies in the fact that so many Americans do not recognize nor understand the true situation.

Many have been lulled into a "fool's paradise." Haven't we just experienced one of the freest-spending Christmases in history, they ask; aren't work opportunities plentiful, wages high, hours short; and haven't our government leaders been assuring us that the state-of-the-nation is good, the future still bright in spite of clouds?

Well, what are the actual facts? After winning World War II just six years ago at great cost in lives and resources, and then losing the peace, we are now in a shooting war with the Communists which our military leaders say we cannot win at the present time. The stalemate, unending, half-way war in Korea is bleeding us of our finest manhood. Korean losses: 101,000 casualties; an estimated 6,000 American prisoners of war brutally slaughtered.

RUSSIA now rules a billion people, she has the atom bomb and a bigger and perhaps better air force and submarine fleet than have we. A powerful Communist Fifth Column in America has been permitted to steal our military secrets and is ready to sabotage our factories and transportation systems when Stalin gives the word.

Our government is taking approximately 30 per cent ($1 out of every $3) of the national income in taxes; citizens are working one-third of their time, on the average, to pay taxes. The national debt is $260 billion—about $7,000 on every family in the nation.

Inflation is crippling the purchasing power of the dollar; in fact the dollar is worth less today than at any time since the Constitution was adopted 162 years ago. Inflation is undermining thrift, endangering our whole economic life. And government policies are feeding inflation, not heading it off.

NEARLY 25,000,000 people are now regularly getting checks from the government. More and more people are getting the "gimme" disease. The virtue of self-reliance, which built America, is becoming a casualty of the times.

It now requires 2,500,000 civilian workers to staff the Federal bureaucracy. The salaries alone amount to $8 billion a year—nearly two times the total federal taxes collected in any year before 1940.

Studies made among school student bodies in many sections of the nation in 1951 indicate that our schools and colleges are turning out a generation of young men and women who, while qualified along special lines, are not well educated, are not aware of the comparative advantages of the American economic system, do not understand how it works, and are therefore easy marks for the propagandists seeking to change our way of life into a government-operated welfare state. Nationwide polls show the adult public to be woefully uninformed on economic facts.

MORALITY IN PUBLIC life has plunged to the lowest level in our history. LOOK Magazine published an article entitled "Scandalous Years in Washington." Congressional committees have heard testimony that Federal taxes in many sections have been "fixed" for political favorites and for bribes. Gangsters and racketeers have gained political respectability through party contributions. Corruption, dishonesty and dishonor have made a winding dirty trail through the government. Political parasites, plying their trade in Washington with the assistance of high officials, have become rich. Few have been brought to the bar of justice.

Yes, the problem and dangers confronting our nation are grave. And the gravest of all is public apathy.

If I were permitted three wishes for the New Year they would be:

(1) for a rebirth of spiritual values, a rededication to Christian principles, a truly righteous uprising against corruption;

(2) the cutting in half of the huge flow of tax money into Washington. Like sugar, a big lump of money draws flies—green flies off the refuse dump—and the germs they carry pollute and contaminate the nation. The power to tax has become a destructive force. We must control it and drive off the green flies. The third wish is:

(3) for the outlawing of the great conspiracy against America—the Communist Party.

Health To You

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

1 Person in 10 Effected With Parasite

SINCE nearly one person in every 10 is supposed to be afflicted with a tiny animal parasite called endamoeba histolytica and many are seriously ill as a result of this tiny enemy it is not surprising that many inquiries come in on this subject.

The principal symptom caused by the endamoeba is dysentery, though this may not be constant, and sometimes peoples' resistance is just enough to keep the amoeba under control without getting rid of it.

The infection can be carried by food, water, or flies. It is never possible to tell in advance whether an infected person will develop serious symptoms, mild symptoms or none at all.

People who are not being seriously harmed by the amoeba which are present in their intestines can pass the parasites on to other people. This is especially true if they have anything to do with handling food.

Also, if anything goes wrong with the plumbing in buildings in which infected people live, serious epidemics of amoebic dysentery can develop.

In many patients the disease develops suddenly with pain and tenderness over the abdomen and frequent and often bloody bowel movements. The majority of patients recover after a stormy and severe illness.

A few victims die and others pass over into a chronic stage or a stage in which symptoms are absent though the parasites may be still present. Whenever a sudden illness of this kind develops or in the chronic stage, when alternating periods of constipation and diarrhea occur, amoebic dysentery must be considered as one of the possible causes.

The definite diagnosis can be made only by finding the amoeba in the feces with the aid of a microscope.

Powerful new drugs are available to combat amoebic infection. Nevertheless, it is important to treat amoebic dysentery just as soon after it starts as is possible.

Even more important is avoiding the amoeba altogether. This is taken into the body with infected food, in almost all cases, and it is therefore wise to be careful to eat only pure food and to make sure that carriers of the amoeba are not engaged in the preparation or processing of food where they can contaminate it.

Congressional Quiz

Q—Does Congress spend much time running the District of Columbia?

A—According to Sen. William Benton (D Conn.), who supports self-rule for Washington, D. C., Congress spends about 5,000 man hours every year on its job of running the capital city. Twenty-seven of the 255 public laws passed this year dealt with the District of Columbia.

NEW YORK
WILBUR PEEBLE is the kind of guy who puts everything off to the last minute. Looking up from his morning paper in surprise, he said to his wife:

"Why, it's New Year's Eve tonight, Trellis Mae! And we haven't made any plans. What would you like to do, honey?"

"What would you like to do?" she parried.

"Oh, I don't know," said Wilbur. "Let's do something different for a change."

"That will be hard for you to do," she answered.

"Why?" asked Wilbur.

"Well, let's look at the record," said Trellis Mae, pulling a small black book from the pocket of her housecoat. Wilbur hated that black book because of its title, which was: "The Strange Life and Misdeeds of Wilbur Peeble. Faithfully Compiled by His Wife."

HE BEGAN to squint at Trellis Mae thumbed through the index and paused at the section headed, "New Year's Eve Crimes and Mishaps."

"You want to do something different for a change?" she mused. "Well, let's see. Remember when college boys across the country were swallowing goldfish? At a New Year's Eve party that year you went to the toilet and tried to swallow a three-pound trout."

Wilbur said nothing, but coughed a little. The mere memory of that episode always made his throat feel sore.

"I will skip over the New Year's Eve of 1947, when you poked that fight with the policeman," said Trellis Mae. "Let's take 1948. H-m-m-m. We went to a night club and you loaned $20 to a total stranger from Boston, and we ended up walking home because you didn't have taxi fare."

WILBUR FLASHED and choked quickly on his breakfast toast.

"In 1949 we went to your aunt's house," continued his wife, "and you did that tight rope walking act of your across the top of the sofa. Everybody laughed . . . but the boss didn't laugh when you fell off and broke the floor lamp."

Wilbur put down his fork. He no longer felt hungry.

"And last year," came the pitiless voice of his wife, "we had a party here. You invited a dozen people I never heard of, and you arrived four hours late yourself with a fellow you met at a bar and felt sorry for because he was alone."

"I don't remember him at all," mumbled Wilbur.

"Of course you do," prodded Trellis Mae. "He was the gentleman who kept throwing firecrackers because he said New Year's Eve always gave him a Fourth of July feeling."

"HOW DID I KNOW he had firecrackers in his pockets," said Wilbur. "Anyway, why do you always have to put everything down in a little black book? It isn't fair."

Trellis Mae closed the book.

"All right," she said. "I just wanted to refresh our memory. You said you wanted to do something different this year. Well, what'll be? Shall we go to the zoo and shoot a polar bear?"

Wilbur walked over and pecked her on the cheek.

"Aw," he said, "let's just stay home tonight all by ourselves, Trellis Mae, and watch the New Year come in together."

"That'll be a real change, my dear," said his wife, and gave him a warm kiss and sent him off to work. Then she pulled out her little black book and wrote a single word in it: "Victory!"

Baby Sitter Kills Child After TV Show

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 16-year-old baby sitter related to police how she watched a murder mystery on television, then strangled a sleeping 6-year-old girl with a stocking.

"I did it, but I don't have any reason," she told investigators, quoted the high school sophomore, Delores Mae Campbell, as saying soon after a neighbor discovered the tragedy early yesterday.

Delores Mae, in jail on a murder booking, told deputies that as she lay on the couch after watching the television program, she had a vision.

"I saw a girl lying in bed with her arms folded across her chest and a green stocking around her neck," Delores Mae said.

The girl was Delores Mae's cousin, 6-year-old Mary Mae Campbell, who was sleeping in the bed.

Voice Of America Puts Transmitter On Cutter

ROCKEEN, N. J. (AP)—The Voice of America will take to the seven seas in its all-out war of words with Russia.

The Coast Guard cutter "Courier" is being fitted with a $1,600,000 Voice transmitter stronger than any American commercial radio station.

The 3,800-ton ship is slated to shove off Feb. 15 under the sealed orders from the State Department.

Korean Talks Run Into 1952

UN Says Reds Talk Peace, Plan War

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—In final Korean truce talks of 1951, the United Nations today accused the Reds of planning war while negotiating a truce and of trying to squirm out of an agreement to tell what happened to more than 50,000 unaccounted for prisoners of war.

Subcommittees wound up the year still deadlocked on the issues of policing an armistice and exchanging prisoners of war. Both groups scheduled meetings in Panmunjom for 11 a.m. Tuesday.

"By your assumed attitude of a victor and your insistence on developing a military air capability (airfields) you have served clear notice to the world that what you have in mind is not peace but war," said Maj. Gen. Howard Turner, U.N. negotiator. "You have cast an ominous shadow over these negotiations."

Rear Adm. R. E. Libby said the Communists refused to provide data on prisoners the U.N. says were not listed on the official Red roster until the Allies supply further information on prisoners in U.N. camps. Most of the 50,000 the U.N. claims were listed as prisoners by the Reds in official radio broadcasts were South Koreans.

Hungarian Consulate In Cleveland Closes

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Hungarian consulate moved out of its office in the Citizens Building today.

The Lincoln Storage Co. said it hauled three cabinets and three cases of books to the Hungarian Workers Federation headquarters here. Other office effects went into the company warehouse.

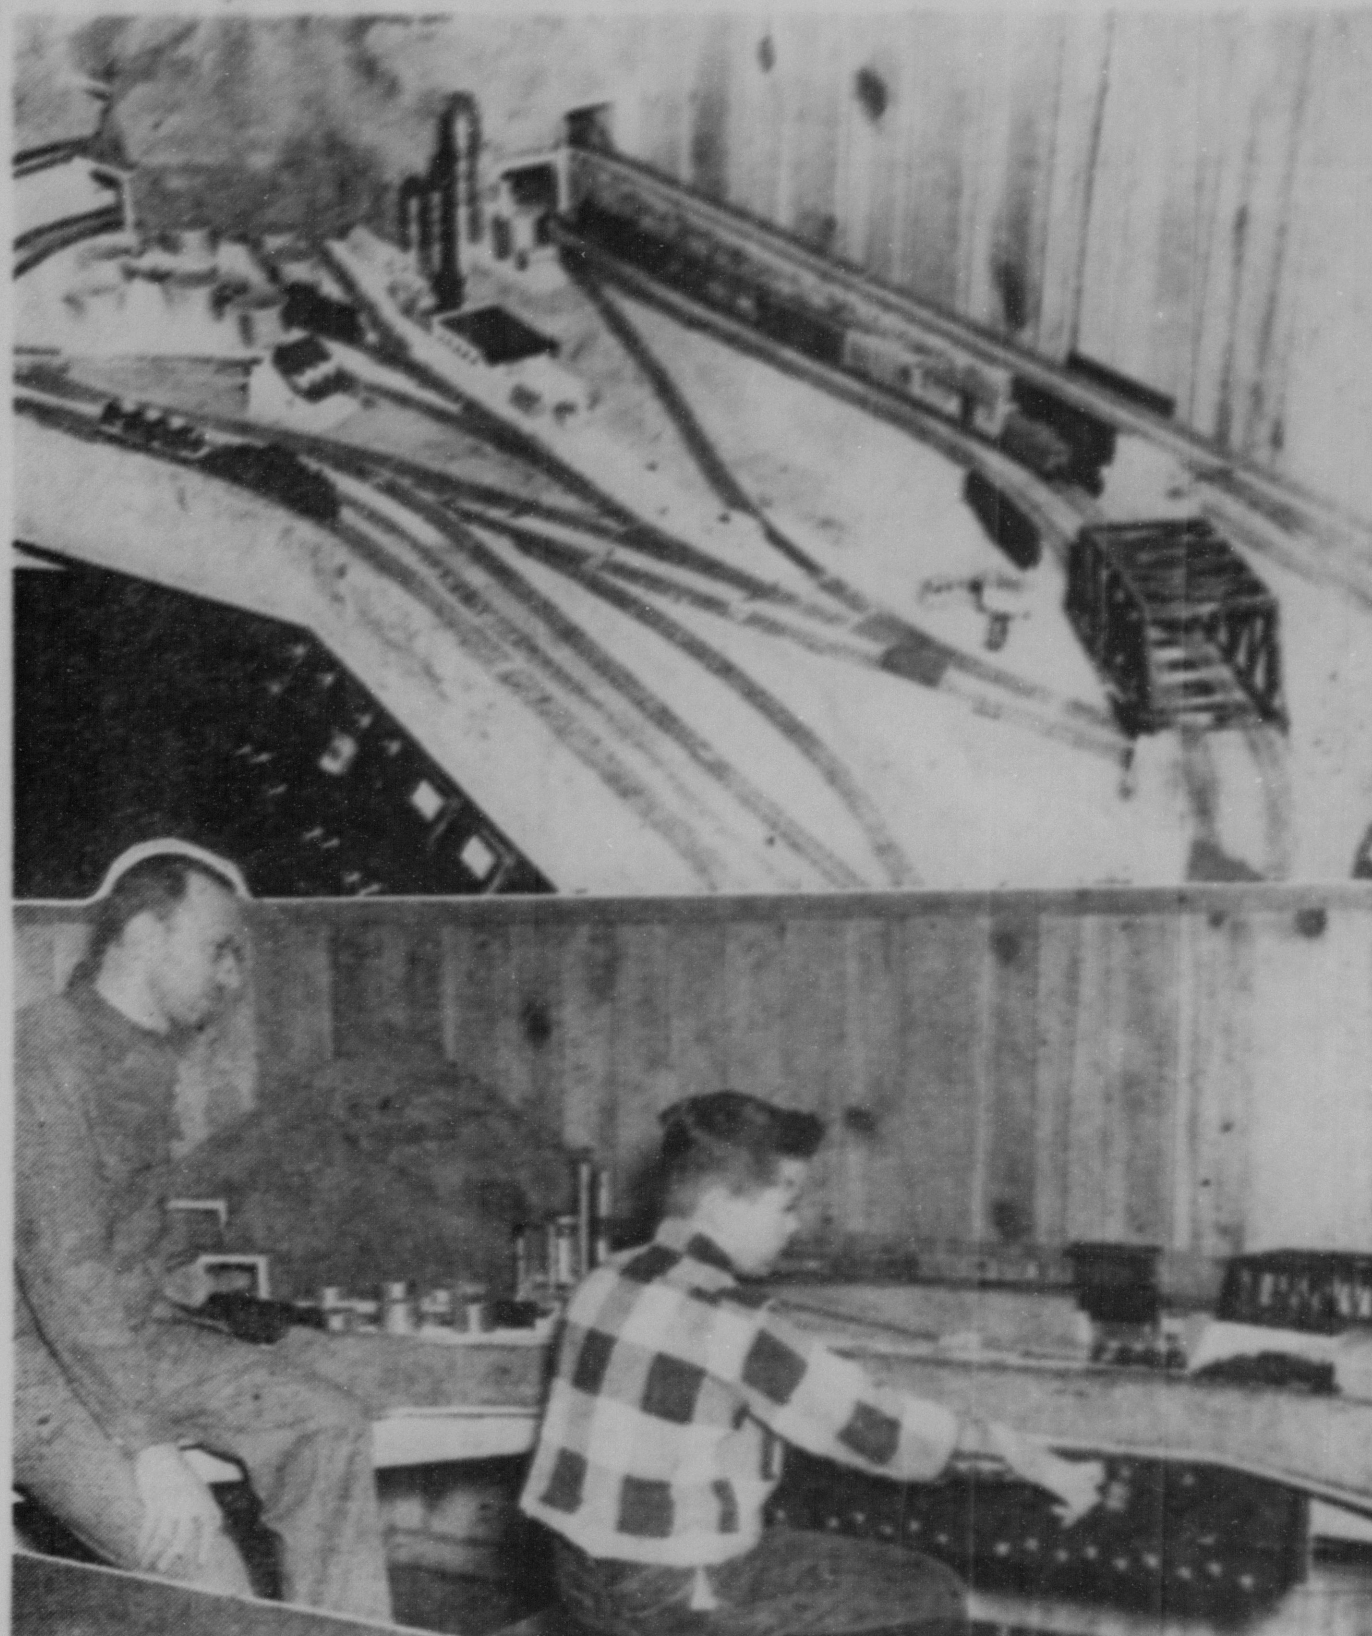

John Cincar, head of the workers federation, could not be reached for comment as to why some of the equipment was sent to his organization.

John Boldog, Hungarian consular attache in New York, came here to assist Miss Zsuzanne Fazekas, local Hungarian consul. He said most papers and files will be shipped to the Hungarian legation in Washington.

The U. S. government ordered the closing because four U. S. airmen, grounded in Hungary, were held there until fines totaling $120,000 were paid.

Rare editions and manuscripts of the Library of Congress are kept in air conditioned vaults to prevent deterioration.

Father, Son Are Engineers of Model Railroad

RUSSELL and Bob McArthur of 769 E. Fifth St. are a father and son team of evening railroaders. Shown above is the result of a year of spare time work on their scale model railroad in the basement recreation room of their home.

At present the miniature train layout includes four engines and 15 cars (made from kits). There's 100 feet of HO gauge track, a refinery and village. Everything in the display is scaled to about one inch to 7 1/2 feet.

Still not ready just to sit and watch the model trains run, Mr. McArthur and his son are working on other additions to the railway system.

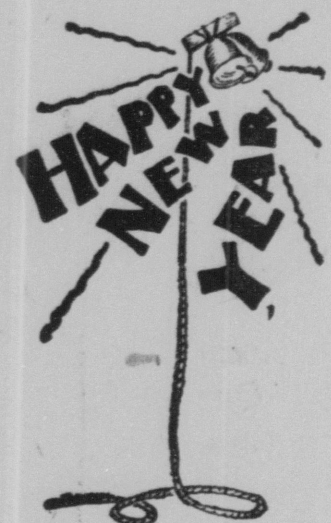

Mr. McArthur watches at extreme left as son Bob runs trains simultaneously from central control panel.

Missiles

the guided missile. Most of the big aircraft companies are working intensively in their own missile research laboratories.

One industry official, Robert E. Gross, president of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, says we have a fine start on the problem of guided missiles but hastens to point out the question of guiding the missiles is still a thorny one. He told a group of bank officials recently that:

Must Bend Beam

"In plain language, we must have a guidance system that can go beyond the horizon. How do you bend a beam—an electronic beam along which the missile rides—around the curve of the earth's surface?"

Gross, of course, was speaking of only one portion of the guidance problem. Even when a missile arrives in the general area of a distant target city, there is the matter of providing it with "Target selectivity" intelligence to steer it to the exact factory district or munitions depot area prescribed.

Also, far better maps are needed when missiles are launched down a range that may be four or five thousand miles. Checks with radio instruments and high-altitude photography have shown that even large cities of the world may be ten or more miles off position on the best maps.

It may be that in warfare of the future, the guided missile still will need help from the human brain. Pilots in reconnaissance planes may have to go out in advance over the target to give the beam transmitters back home the exact position.

No one can use this telephone until Marko finishes his nap.

MAN'S BEST friend is supposed to be his dog, but a nervy crow by the name of Marko intends to change all that. Tired of angry farmers and their scarecrows, Marko flew to Utica, N. Y., one fine day and latched onto a boy named Dave Malara. Sizing things up later, Marko decided to muscle in on Major, Dave's pet bulldog. As soon as Marko learned to say a few words like "Hello" and "What's that?" he became "top dog" in the Malara household. Now he sleeps any place he wants to, rides on Dave's bike, shows off for visitors, swipes Major's food and, worst of all, even beats man's best friend at a game of tug-of-war.

Marko, not satisfied with shoving Major around, even has to win their tug-of-war contests.

Alumni Cagers Overpower Quakers To Win Game, 66-54

Tennessee Is Favorite Over Maryland In Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—When national champion Tennessee meets Maryland in the Sugar Bowl tomorrow in football's biggest game, the favored Vols will be trying again to stop the trend of favorites losing in the major bowls.

Tennessee, No. 1 team in the nation in the Associated Press poll, and Maryland, No. 3 team, kick off at 2:45 p.m. (EST) in 82,000-seat Tulane Stadium, known every New Year's Day as the Sugar Bowl.

Every ticket for the vast cavern has been sold for weeks.

General Robert Neyland, coach of the Tennessee team, has trained his touchdown-favored men for nearly a week at Baton Rouge, La. Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland has trained his Terrapins at Biloxi, Miss.

When Tennessee won the national championship the Vols immediately faced the job of overcoming the bowl trend against the favorites.

In the last three major bowl seasons, eight teams rated lower won games from superior ranked opponents. Only three higher ranked teams managed victories while one bowl game involved two unranked teams.

In the only appearance of another national champion in a bowl since World War II, the champion, Oklahoma, was upset by an underdog, Kentucky. That was in the Sugar Bowl Jan. 1, this year.

The game will be Neyland's 199th at Tennessee. His magnificent record is 163 victories, 24 defeats and 11 ties. Tatum, a youngster compared to Neyland, in five years has won 38, lost nine and tied three.

Parilli Is Feature Of Cotton Bowl Game

DALLAS, (AP) — Tomorrow afternoon, as 75,000 roar in the Cotton Bowl, Vito (Babe) Parilli will face his greatest test.

The Kentucky babe, that lithe, rugged young man of Italian extraction who has been in the nation's headlines for three great collegiate football years, will be handling and passing the ball for Kentucky against slashing Texas Christian.

It's the final appearance of Parilli as a collegian and he feels that this is the time when he must play his greatest game. Saturday he becomes a professional in the Senior Bowl at Mobile where the players get paid for their services.

Parilli in the Air ROTC at Kentucky and when he graduates next January automatically receives a reserve commission. So he may be called into service then. He hopes to get in a year of pro football before being called.

Both teams wind up training today and all members of the two squads will answer present for the kickoff. TCU is in top physical condition. Eight Kentucky players have had the flu and may not be up to standard but all will be ready to play.

HIGH CHALLENGE—Guard Bob Watson leaps in a vain attempt to take the basketball away from seven-foot Kentucky teammate, Bill Spivy, the tallest college player.

THE TWO TEAMS opened the game by feeling each other out and failed to score until two minutes had passed. It was Bob Coy who opened the scoring as he caged a foul shot. Coy had a perfect night at the foul line by making five of five attempted shots.

Wayne Harris, who caged one-third of his shots from the field and six of seven foul shots, dropped in a bucket and the two teams were off to an interesting night of basketball.

The count ran to 8-6 with two minutes left in the quarter and the varsity took a slim 9-8 lead with 30 seconds to go and Coy on the line for two shots.

The lanky cager sank both his attempts to run the count to 10-9 and then Jim Hurlbert intercepted and scored as the Cabasmen took the ball out of bounds and the Alumni held a 12-9 lead at the quarter.

THE ALUMNI continued its superb play in the second period as they hit for 19 points while the Quakers managed only seven markers. The former cagers lost two points as Harris hit for a basket to start the quarter and then they stacked up four fielders to run the score to 20-11 before the varsity tallied again.

Coach Ben Barrett, successful Alumni mentor, pulled his starters, composed of Coy, Hurlbert, Jim Callahan, Bob Theiss and Tom Pastier midway in the quarter and inserted his reserve players, who supported the lead to halftime.

Barrett started the second stringers when the two teams returned for the third quarter and they were outscored by three points, 20-17. Don Abrams, 6' 2", one-handed expert, accounted for

Abrams, Harris Score 20 In Saturday Affair

Former Salem cagers were too much for Coach John Cabas' Quakers Saturday evening as the Alumni captured a 66-54 decision, the first graduate victory in two years.

Using ten 1951 graduates and Eddie Bozich from the 1949 class, the Alumni grabbed a 31-16 advantage at halftime and coasted through the final two periods to post the win.

13 points in the quarter while Jack Haldeman swished a pair of set shots to total the Alumni's 17 markers.

THE VARSITY, led by Jerry Ball's six points and Harris' five, tallied seven goals in 15 attempts from the field and six of seven foul shot attempts for a 20-point period.

Going into the final stanza, the Alumni held a 12-point advantage and the two teams played evenly with eighteen points in the final period.

Coach Barrett inserted his starters again while Coach Cabas continued to use Ball, Harris, Bill Brellish, Benny Roelen and Eddie Votaw in the lineup until Brellish fouled out midway in the quarter.

Harris again led the varsity pack with three goals while Abrams, playing the final four minutes, hit for two more baskets and a foul as Callahan, now a starting guard with the Cornell Frosh, also garnered five points. Final score, 66-54, Alumni.

HARRIS and Abrams tied for scoring honors for the evening as each hit the hoops for 20 points. Harris fired 21 times and sank seven while Abrams shot 90 per cent with nine goals for ten shots and making both of his free throw attempts.

Shooting averages for both teams was excellent as the varsity fired 62 times at the basket and dropped 20 for 32.3 per cent. The Alumni collected 26 two-pointers while shooting 85 times for 30.6 per cent.

On the foul line the graduates cashed in for 2/3 of their shots making 14 of 21 tries. The Cabasmen were off a bit from their usual foul performance with 13 successful shots of 24 attempts for 52.2 per cent.

The Salem Reserves emerged with their fourth victory Saturday evening in the preliminary game to the Salem-Alumni tilt as they edged the Alliance Reserves, 51-48.

The younger Quakers held a 32-20 halftime advantage but the Aviators outscored them, 28-19 in the final two periods and came within three points of winning the game.

Salem held a 12-6 quarter lead and then gained six more points on the Aviators in the second period when they tallied 20 markers while yielding Alliance 14.

The Aviators came back strongly in the third quarter for 16 points as the Quakers managed to get 13.

The locals were outscored, 12-6, in the final stanza but the Aviator rally was three points shy of Salem's 51 markers.

Orange Bowl Clash Rated As Toss-Up

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Two high-scoring football teams from the Southeastern Conference—Georgia Tech and Baylor—clash tomorrow in the 16th annual Orange Bowl game before a sell-out crowd of 65,000.

Most experts predict a free-scoring affair with the game rated a toss-up. Pre-game betting was 6-5 and take your choice.

A passing duel was forecast between Georgia Tech's Darrell Crawford and Baylor's Larry I. bell. Crawford completed 77 of 136 passes for 1,153 yards and 12 touchdowns last season while I. bell, Baylor's All American quarterback, completed 105 of 214 for 1,430 and 10 touchdowns.

Illini 6 1/2-Point Favorite In Rose Bowl Tilt

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Old Father Rose Bowl, the pappy of all the postseason college grid attractions, is ready to present his 39th attraction tomorrow, come rain, shine or mud.

The old fellow has been staging these contests for many years, the first in 1902, and there's no reason to hold back on this one, no matter what the elements may be. The weather man says it will be cloudy and windy.

THE PRINCIPALS, of course, are Illinois and Stanford, tugging in the sixth contest in the series between the best teams of the Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conferences. They are ready, too, as ready as they'll ever be.

One hundred thousand fans are waiting to see the game in person, too, provided the weather is good, and millions of others will watch for the time across the nation on their television sets.

The game will be telecast, as well as broadcast, over the national Broadcasting Company network.

The kickoff is set for 3 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time).

THE ILLINI, a light but shifty quick hitting outfit with a powerful defense, remains the favorite to win by six and a half points. The rule doubtless stems from its record of nine victories and one scoreless tie against rugged opposition, plus the fact that the Big Ten team has yet to meet defeat in the series with the coast leaguers.

Stanford, a gambling, come-from-behind band, has its ardent supporters, of course. All are banking on the potential development which could be cooked up by Quarterback Gary Kerkorian, All-American End Bill McCall or such backs as Bob Mathias, Ben Meyers or Harry Haganian.

FACES TOLD STORY OF '51

THIS year as any other, man had his triumphs and disasters. It is a sad but inescapable fact that the modern world had news, somehow, seems more dramatic than good news. The biggest stories of recent generations have been about war, fire, explosion, food, hurricane, murder and violence. Expressions on the faces below prove once again that one good picture is worth 10,000 words.

Gen. Eisenhower registers emotion at SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe) on learning of the Gen. Douglas MacArthur firing.

Conservatively speaking, Clement Attlee had good reason for woe. Voters rejected him as Prime Minister for Winston Churchill in British elections.

Price Stabilizer Michael V. Doherty left this way after questions, questions, questions about the wage-price freeze.

Ambassador William O'Dwyer found it harder in New York than in Mexico while testifying before Kefauver committee.

T. Lamar Caudle, ex-assistant attorney general, is taxed almost beyond endurance by the questions of tax problem.

Scientists Find Chemical Way To Cross-Breed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A new method of cross-breeding was one of the most significant scientific discoveries reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science which closed its meeting here yesterday.

This is a German chemical discovery reported by Dr. Roger Adams, University of Illinois chemist, who said it appears to open a new field of great possibilities.

He said there are two kinds of Forsythia, the yellow-flowering bush of early Spring in northern states. The pollen of one kind will not fertilize the flowers of the other.

German chemists examined the two pollens and found out that they were different chemically. With chemical treatment they changed these pollens slightly. Thereupon either kind of pollen fertilized the plants which never had been susceptible before.

Dr. Adams pointed out that this was entirely different from the ways in which cross-breeding has been done. X-rays, Colchicine and other chemicals have been used to cause mutations, that is changes in the heredity of plants and animals. The changes are uncontrolled, and one out of thousands is sometimes useful and occasionally makes it possible to do hitherto impossible cross-breeding.

The new chemical method is a possible short-cut to improving food plants. He said there are no reports of trying the chemical change for animal breeding.

U. S. Home Building Shows Slight Drop

More than a million new homes got under construction during the year in spite of growing scarcities of materials, severe restrictions on credit and rises in building costs to an all-time high.

Although the federal government hoped to hold home building to a total of 650,000 new dwellings, indications were that the final count may exceed 1,500,000 — only about 15 per cent less than the 1950 record.

Heavy construction — skyscrapers, factories, public works and defense plants — boosted the nation's building output to more than $29 billion, compared with slightly less than $28 billion for 1950.

The National Production Authority rejected more than $1 billion worth of commercial and other construction for the last quarter of the year — 63 per cent of all applications on file.

Individual home buyers were handicapped by Federal Reserve check limits on mortgages. The no down-payment privilege for war veterans was revoked and liberal FHA terms for non-veterans vanished into the higher price brackets. A $12,000 house called for $2,400 in cash from a non-veteran; a $25,000 house called for $12,500 in cash.

Building labor costs rose approximately 10 per cent above their 1950 pre-Korean levels and materials cost were up about 12 per cent and still climbing.

SENATE RE-ELECTION
WAVERTY (AP) — State Rep. Charles Noel (R-Pike), author of Ohio's anti-slot machine bill, today announced his candidacy for state senator from the 7th district. Noel, now serving his first term in the house of representatives, is the first Republican elected in democratic Pike county in nearly a century.

Air Force Questions 4 Released Airmen

ERDING, Germany (AP) — Airforce intelligence officers today continued interrogation of American fliers released Friday after 29 days imprisonment in Communist Hungary.

The men were returned to their stations at this U. S. airbase and cloistered with intelligence officials who apparently are making a detailed study of their imprisonment.

An Airforce spokesman said that each man was in session with the interrogators nearly a full day, and that S-Sgt. James A. Duff of Spokane, Wash., the last to be questioned, would finish his story this afternoon.

Capt. James Swift of Glen Falls, N. Y., another of the four, left for his home Sunday because of his father's illness.

Sergeant Klaus, State Department legal staff member and intelligence expert, is attending the interrogation sessions.

Col. Park Holland of Albany, N. Y., base commander, said today that he would give the fliers leave or furlough time "the minute they ask for it."

The heaviest atom yet discovered is called californium, the production of which by means of high energy particles from the cyclotron at the University of California was announced early in 1950.

Detention Camp Project Under Way

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney General McGrath is quietly taking the first steps toward setting up detention camps for dangerous subversives in this country, should the need arise.

It is a big-scale operation, providing for a possible roundup of many thousands of potential spies and saboteurs.

Federal prison labor is already at work—or soon will be—on three major installations with a combined capacity for housing more than 3,000 persons.

One of these is the former military airport at Wickenburg, Ariz. The others are World War II prisoner-of-war camps at Florence, Ariz., and El Reno, Okla.

Surveys of other similar unused government properties are being made, including Tule Lake, Calif., where some 20,000 West Coast Japanese were held during the last war.

The entire project is under the supervision of James V. Bennett, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Truman, Military Differ Over Budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House confirmed today that President Truman has run into difficulties in framing a budget for the government's new year. The snag is over defense spending.

Joseph Short, presidential press secretary, said there will be a delay in sending the budget message to Congress because some military items are still undecided.

As a result, the budget message will be the last of the three annual messages to go to Congress which reconvenes Jan. 8.

Ordinarily, the state-of-the-union message is the first, followed next by the budget message, and finally by an economic message.

Short said the plan this year is to hold the budget message until last, simply because it won't be ready sooner. Without giving details, he said there has been "considerable discussion" of the budget's military phases.

The budget will cover proposed government spending in the 12 months beginning next July 1—what the government calls the 1952 fiscal year.

There are signs that the budget difficulties developed because military's own recommendations were considerably bigger than Mr. Truman was willing to accept.

Coroner Rules Wellsville Man's Death Accidental

EAST LIVERPOOL — Columbians County Coroner Ernest Sturgis today ruled Marion A. Halfhill's death was accidental and ordered the release of Edgar W. Decker, 23, of Philadelphia, driver of a truck which struck Halfhill and Clarence Wickham Friday afternoon on Clark Ave., Wellsville.

Services for Halfhill, 47, employee of the McLean Fire Brick Co., will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 at the MacLean funeral home in Wellsville. He is survived by his widow, parents, a daughter, and three sons.

Meanwhile, Wickham is in "poor" condition at City Hospital with a skull fracture.

PROFESSOR ELECTED

DENVER, (AP)—Professor Robert E. Matthews of Ohio State University College of Law yesterday was elected president of the Association of American Law Schools.

COURTHOUSE TO CLOSE

LISBON—The courthouse will be closed New Year's Day, Columbians County commissioners announced.

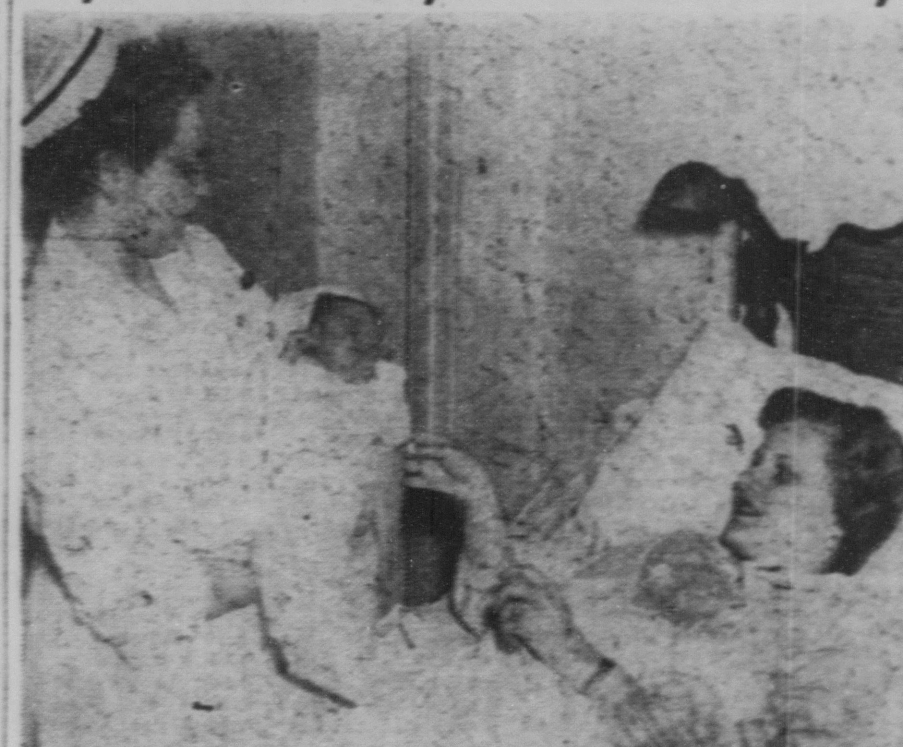

OUCH! My Acid Stomach!

Too bad he didn't know about TUMS. A pill of Tums costs only a dime. But it's worth its weight in gold! When acid indigestion causes gas and pressure pains. Tums neutralize stomach sourness almost before it starts—without risk of acid rebound. They contain no baking soda or other water soluble alkalies to over-alkalize. That's why millions always carry Tums—for top relief. Eat 1 or 2 Tums after meals or when over-indulgence in eating, smoking or drinking brings acid distress. Keep Tums handy—eat like candy. Get a roll today.

Man, Buried 2 Hours By Avalanche, Found Alive

PLACERVILLE, Calif. (AP)—Frank Kerk, 28-year-old highway worker, was buried under an avalanche two hours and came out alive.

James S. Swafford, 37, was crushed to death by the same slide Sunday in a blustering snowstorm 50 miles east of Placerville.

Rescuers who dug Kerk out of the snow and mud theorized that the slide left an air space, permitting the trapped man to breathe. Kerk's first words when he was pulled out were: "Please tell my wife I am all right."

Liar's Club Picks Minister As Champ

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP)—Flabbergasted judges of the Burlington Liar's Club today pinned the title of the world's champion liar on a member of the clergy—the Rev. Arthur R. Kirk of Biggs, Calif.

O. C. Hulett, president of the club, said the club's officers, acting as judges, came to a unanimous decision on the winner of their 1951 contest "and then almost fainted when they looked at the name signed at the bottom of the letter."

Here's what Mr. Kirk, pastor of the Biggs Community Church, wrote:

"A man living west of town tried to raise watermelons this summer. He had very bad luck. The soil was too rich. The watermelon vines grew so fast that they wore the watermelons out, dragging them along on the ground."

"One of the boys from town went out one night to swipe a melon. He got the melon all right, but the vines were growing so fast that warm night that the boy had to be taken to the hospital. Before he could break the melon off the vine, it had dragged him half a mile and he was in bad shape."

Wall Street Chemicals Feature In Year-End Rally

NEW YORK (UP)—Chemical shares featured an extension of the year-end rally on the stock market today.

The best gainers included such issues as American Cyanamid at 119-1/4 up 1-1/4 and its preferred at 165 up 7-1/4. Monsanto sold at 105-1/2 up 3-1/4 points. Allied Chemical and DuPont gained major fractions.

A few other issues were bid up a point or more including American Sugar, Denver & Rio Grande Western, and Newmont Mining. The last gained four points to 110. Marathon Corp., set a new high at 60-1/4 up 1/4.

Elsewhere the market moved narrowly. It was affected by the usual year-end evening up operations and some switching of shares. Numerous transactions were made for cash to register profits for tax purposes. Some short conveying to establish tax losses helped sustain the market.

Industrials and utilities gained slightly in their averages. The latter set a new high for more than 20 years. Rails were off slightly but would have showed a slight gain had not Northern Pacific sold ex-dividend.

Sales the first hour totaled 230,000 shares, against 330,000 shares in the corresponding period last Friday.

Fourteen Survive Plane Crash Which Claimed 26 Lives

Wreckage Found In Rugged Area Of New York

Injured In Hospital After Man Reaches Form, Spreads Word

LITTLE VALLEY, N. Y. (AP) — Fourteen injured survivors reached safety tonight from the wreckage of an unscheduled landing that disappeared Saturday night. Twenty-six persons died in the crash.

The wreckage was located late today, after one passenger had struggled through dense underbrush for nearly four hours to reach a farmhouse. It was in one of the most rugged sections of southwestern New York.

The Dutchess county sheriff's office said the most severely injured of the survivors were brought off through dense underbrush in a hoisted arrangement towed by a tractor.

What Was Seen: There were 15 survivors still in the plane when rescue workers got to it.

All the injured were being taken to Salem District Hospital. The first to arrive there was identified by the hospital as Mrs. Anna Rao, 51, Goshen, Pa.

Mrs. Rao was listed as a passenger in the crashed plane. Her address on the list was given as 251 Madison Ave., Goshen, Pa. However, her name was not given by the survivor who walked out.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Rao suffered shoulder and leg injuries and that her condition was good.

There was a George Albert (Al) Albert, 34, thought to be the driver of the plane, in the wreckage. He was wearing a flight suit and a parachute. He was found by the rescue workers in the wreckage of the plane.

TO THE NEW YEAR

By Elsie Karlin

We cannot tell with certainty
The course that you should steer,
But make our trip around the sun
A happy one this year.

Guide us so we see the moon
And stars along the way.
Follow paths that hold for us
Some sunlight every day.

Lead us quickly through the clouds
And storms that block our view.
Then let us linger to enjoy
A rainbow's lovely hue.

Time, you have so much to spend
We have but little here.
So make our trip around the sun
A happy one this year.

Red Plane Hits Kampo Airfield

Allied Gun Boom On Korean Front

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A red plane bombing raid on Kampo airfield and a strong Allied artillery bombardment on the western front greeted the new year today in 33-degree temperatures.

The Seoul-based United Nations Command said the red plane was shot down by Allied fighters. The plane was carrying a large amount of bombs.

Toast Is For Peace As World Ushers In 1952

Despite the grimness of world politics, people of nearly all nations today celebrated the arrival of a new year with a toast to peace and hope for the best.

Many Americans observed the coming of 1952 with prayer at traditional church with night services. Others made merry at night and noisy parties.

The occasion was dimmed by the usual holiday tail of several hundred auto accidents. The first day of 1952 were away just like any other for all, even sometimes fighting but often just sitting it out in Korea.

Those able to get near a radio heard the true facts had agreed to drag their tails on into the new year.

Century-Old Colonial Hotel Building To Be Torn Down

Salem will lose another landmark when the 100-year-old four-story hotel building on East State St., next to the Grand Theater is razed early in 1952.

Condemned by city officials several years ago, it was formerly known as the American Colonial Hotel. The three upper stories of the 48 to 50-room building have not been occupied, but the first floor has been occupied by a bakery, shoe shop and a general store.

Mrs. Mary Bova, owner for many years, who now resides with her son Fred, at Aspinwall, Pa., plans to replace it in the spring with a one-story building, made into apartments, it is learned. First floor tenants will be given an opportunity to return to the location when the new structure is completed.

Was Farguhar House This hotel, which has 24 front windows in the three upper stories, was probably the city's tallest and largest building when it was completed 100 years ago, Dec. 31, 1851.

Built by Allen Farguhar, one of the first directors of the Farmers Bank, it was first known as the Farguhar House. Mr. Farguhar then lived on a farm on the north side of Washingtonville road, just east of the city, opposite the Eli Fawcett homestead. One of his great-granddaughters, Miss Laura Sefton, recalls that he was a man of great physical strength. She says that he built a board sidewalk (all by himself) from his home into the city.

His son, "Bud" is said to have built the brick house on S. Lincoln, which was occupied by the late Dr. L. F. Delfus. Allen Farguhar died Dec. 20, 1885, at the age of 47.

Early Days Recalled Daniel Howell Hiest, in "Pay's Diary" gives a picture of Salem in those early days. He records that early in December, 1851, he "helped to get up interest in making a plank road up Street's Hollow, from the depot to intersect Main St., opposite Farguhar's hotel," and that the project would be finished that winter.

The railroad through Salem had just been completed in November. It was on Nov. 14, 1851, that the

There were no traffic jams when I was there," he said. His ground inspection was between 11:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. Saturday, after the flight over the area.

The traffic is heavy, of course," he said, "but it isn't so heavy at Petersburg. The majority of the traffic does not have to go through Petersburg at all."

That any community doesn't have a traffic light, Kauer said, "at the moment" he doesn't think it will need one. But he made it clear that was not a final decision.

He gave these eastbound traffic figures, taken at Gateway, the Pennsylvania turnpike entrance closest to Ohio: During all of last Friday, 2,866

3 Dead, 4 Missing In West Snowstorms

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Three persons were known dead, four were missing and at least 15 hurt today as the result of a year-end storm which lashed the old year out of the high Sierra and Rocky mountain regions.

Many hundreds were stranded some for only a few hours in ski and winter sports resorts in the high country. None was in danger either of hunger or cold.

The howling storm which struck Friday night and Saturday, closed the transcontinental highways, U. S. 40 and 50, from California into Nevada and blocked the roads to mile-high Big Bear resort in southern California for several hours, stranding 1,500 visitors and residents there.

Highway passes across the Rockies were closed in Colorado and 400 persons were trapped for several hours at a resort on 11,315 foot Berthoud Pass west of Denver.

Winter Thaw Floods Four State Roads

Melting snow flooded four secondary Ohio roads today as spring-like weather covered much of Ohio.

At the same time, the flood-filled Chagrin River receded one foot at Eastlake, near Cleveland. The high water had driven 30 families from their homes.

The state highway patrol said that if the warm weather continues more highways will be closed by high water in the next 48 hours.

Roads closed by overflowing streams: Route 49 between Routes 32 and 224 in Hancock county; Route 146 between Routes 21 and 472 in Guernsey county; Route 231 four miles south of Nevada in Wood county; and Route 294 between Routes 45 and 699 in Wayne county.

The warm weather again brought fog to northern Ohio. The mercury hit 50 degrees in Salem today. A year ago today here it was 32.

The thermometer rose to 51 in Youngstown and 50 in Cleveland.

Lucas Village Boosts One Lone Councilman

MANFIELD (AP)—The neg. by village of Lucas finally got a councilman today, but it's still shy five more and a three-man board of public affairs.

No one filed for the village of Lucas before the November election, but several names were written in. One wrote in was Willard Darling, has agreed to accept a council post.

Now, Mayor Zane Moore, the only Lucas official who sought office, is seeking a ruling on whether he must fill the vacancies by appointment or whether Councilman Darling is required to name the other councilmen.

Former Gas Co. Manager Takes City Job Jan. 15

Succeeds Retiring C. E. Phillips; Council Members Sworn In

At a special City Council meeting Monday evening, Mayor Harry M. Vincent announced the impending retirement of Safety Service Director C. E. Phillips, effective Jan. 15, and the appointment of J. Arch Harwood, former district manager of the Natural Gas Company of West Virginia, as his successor.

The session was the customary end-of-election-year meeting, called for the express purpose of swearing in the new councilmen and other elective city officials into office.

Eligible For Pension Mr. Phillips began his decade in public office as safety director under Mayor Robert Johnson in 1942. Prior to taking that position with the city, he had worked for 34 years as a railway postal clerk and had served for some time as custodian at the Masonic Temple.

Mayor Vincent said that he had accepted Mr. Phillips' resignation with reluctance and cited his years of loyal service to the city. Eligible for pension, Mr. Phillips stated that he had no plans for the immediate future.

Gas Company Veteran His successor, Mr. Harwood, retired as district manager of the gas company in August of last year, after having completed 36 years of service. Since then he has acted as a special representative of the company and presented its gas-rate-increase request to Council in November. The increase, affecting residential and commercial consumers, was passed by the voters after three readings.

Mr. Harwood is a graduate of Salem schools, an active member of the Rotary and Golf Clubs and of the Steubenville Chapter of the Quarter Century Club, but gas company organization of 400,000 with at least 25 years' experience.

The city's new and exalted Councilmen and exalted City Treasurer C. C. Houser, who sworn in as a body at City Hall by City Solicitor Walter J. Hamilton.

Mr. Hamilton, who was sworn in for re-election, and Mayor Harry M. Vincent administered the oath of office to each official prior to the meeting. Houser, elected auditor, Mrs. Helen B. Bate, was sworn in earlier in the afternoon.

New Council President, Ned Moore, announced that the first session of the incoming council would be held Wednesday. Plans were also announced at the meeting for the customary afternoon dinner which is to be attended by past and present city officials. Tentative date for the affair was set for 6:30 p.m. Jan. 15 at the Lape Hotel.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1 (AP)—Howard H. Haglund, 47, Cincinnati, state secretary and past grand master, president of the National Fraternal Order of Eagles, died at his home today. He had been in ill health for about a year.

POWER OFFICIAL DIES ZANESVILLE (AP)—Clinton L. Spurrer, 78, retired superintendent of the Ohio Power Company plant at nearby Philo died in Bethesda hospital here today.

Experts Predict Prices Will Level Off In 1952

AT NEWSFEATURES

NEW YORK—The consumer took it in the neck in 1951—the cost of living rising throughout the year. And he enters 1952 with the price of many manufactured items, such as autos, still rising. But the worst may be over, the experts tell the consumer, and 1952 should see more stable prices, plenty of most things to eat and wear, and full paychecks for even more people than in 1951, which was a year of less than average employment. The experts, of course, have their fingers crossed on the two unknown quantities: war or peace?

How the consumer will react to still higher prices has not yet been decided. If the price of steel goes up, for example, and manufacturers of cars, appliances and other goods made of metal try to pass the extra cost along to the consumer, can they sell their goods?

The consumer took the first waves of post-Korean price increases, and even rushed out to buy—thereby sending prices still higher. But by late spring of 1951 he stopped buying much except necessities. Merchants found themselves wiggling down their inventory. According to Federal figures on personal income, the consumer had more money than ever, but he wasn't spending as much, and was saving more.

Merchants found that to move some of their goods they had to tempt customers with prices cut back to near pre-Korean levels. Given with price resistance by consumers, retailers stopped ordering from their suppliers. The new materials from which clothing and groceries are made dropped in price.

BY THE END OF the year prices in new materials were recovering part of this drop. And retail prices of many staples were firmer. But stores were well stocked with almost every type of goods.

Food supplies should be plentiful in 1952 given average weather conditions. The government is urging farmers to grow even more in 1952 than they did in 1951. Most prices should be more stable in the coming year. MEAT, the consumer's big bugaboo in 1951, should come to the kitchen in larger volume. Meat prices would ease a little, but few hope for much relief.

CLAUSEN: prices will be held down by competition. Consumers learned in 1951 that the clothing industry would make all that was needed by both the military and the civilian population. Competition will lead clothing makers to offer customers more in quality and style. Synthetic fibers, and blends of synthetic and natural fibers, are expected to play an even larger part in outfitting both men and women.

SHOE prices will be lower in the spring. The industry has plenty of capacity to supply military demands and make all the shoes civilians want. Easing leather prices are being passed along in price cuts on the spring line.

HOUSING will be a problem in some communities where defense plants are mushrooming. But the building industry, which had its second biggest year in 1951, will try hard to find the scarce materials needed to build more than the 800,000 homes which the government thinks will be plenty.

A greater proportion of the new homes are likely to be in the lower-priced field than in 1951, home-financing agencies predict. Federal curbs on mortgages won't stop many people from building homes—curbs on use of scarce materials may.

RENTS are expected to continue their slow rise, on a national basis, reflecting the higher building costs of newer dwellings.

CARS may go up in price in 1952—partly because of higher costs of production, partly because fewer will be made and the supply may become tight later in the year.

The auto industry is divided as to whether the four million cars the government has set as a quota for 1952 will be enough. Some think that will be about right for replacement. Others think they could sell five million if allowed to make them. The 1952 new models may be the last for a time, as the government is frowning on model changes that require retooling of plants.

TIRES will be plentiful, and probably lower-priced lines will make an appearance, the industry predicts. The government is dropping its curbs on the output of tires because synthetic and natural rubber are both in good supply.

Drivers probably won't have to worry about any shortage in gasoline, although lower octane ratings are likely as the expanding air force soaks up most of materials for making higher octane gas.

Consumers will find a plentiful supply of household appliances. Big production since the war has whittled down much of the demand, and the building of fewer homes in 1952 will cut down demand for new gadgets still further. Most in the industry think that in spite of the curbs on use of scarce metals they'll turn out enough appliances—refrigerators, washing machines, and so on—to meet customer demand, at least until late in the year.

Householders and industrialists alike should have fairly ample supplies of fuel and power. Defense production needs, and bad breaks in the weather, could cause temporary spot shortages. But the expanding oil, natural gas and electric industries believe they can keep ahead of demand. Coal facilities are adequate both for domestic and foreign needs.

JOB TOTALS are expected to increase in 1952. But there will be headaches as industry shifts around—some civilian goods industries slowing down, defense production industries expanding. Government sees hope the worst of the layoffs in civilian industries will be over by midyear. Near the end of 1951 there were nearly 6½ million people working, and less than two million looking for work. More people are expected to be drawn into the labor force in 1952 to man defense plants.

FRENCHES will feel the pinch of the tax collector in 1952 more than in 1951, reflecting the tax hike that came late in the year. But wages in industry seem set for another round of increases. The money that consumers have left over after taxes should be larger in 1952. Higher wage rates, more overtime, more jobs, higher interest rates and fairly satisfactory rates of dividend payments, all will help swell the total of disposable personal income.

But even with more money in their pockets, consumers will probably go right on wondering where it all goes to.

20-Year Defense Program Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' defense-mobilization program, or something like it, will last for possibly 20 years, Manpower Chief Arthur S. Flemming said today.

If people understood this, he said, more would approve draft deferments for college students and more high school graduates, girls included, would study engineering, which sorely needs trained personnel.

"I have gone on the assumption that we were going to be involved in some kind of defense-mobilization program for the next 10, 15 or 20 years," Flemming said in a copyrighted interview in "U. S. News & World Report", a weekly news magazine.

"It seems to me that if we do not approach it on that particular basis, we get into all kinds of difficulties as far as our reasoning is concerned."

Much adverse reaction to college deferment, Flemming said, arose from those who "figured the emergency was going to be with us for two or three years." He said they believed the armed forces would have no room for draftees upon graduation.

A shortage of engineers is expected to increase and is "one of the most serious problems we are up against," Flemming said.

There are 20 public parks, embracing 18,948 acres, in Phoenix, Ariz. These parks contain 10 playgrounds, 14 tennis courts, a golf course, four swimming pools, and several miles of boating lagoons.

Miss Ethel Carr Becomes
Bride Of Seaman Ralph Davis

AMONG THE LAST OF THE Salem weddings of the old year was that of Miss Ethel Carr who was married at 2:30 o'clock Saturday to Seaman Second Class Ralph Davis in the sanctuary of the First Friends Church.

The daughter of Mrs. Joshua Carr of 836 Newgarden St. and the late Mr. Carr exchanged vows and rings with the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davis of Austintown. Many friends and relawas accented at the back with buttons from neckline to waist. Wears Groom's Gift.

Her fingertip veil was held in place with a lace band trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and mums gathered together with white satin streamers. The single strand of pearls she wore was the gift of the groom.

Mrs. Bruce Greenmyer (Joan Bova) was matron of honor in a shrimp colored satin. The net of the ballerina skirt was over satin and the net was repeated at the yoke. Her mits and Juliet cap matched the shade of her dress. The flowers she carried were yellow and white mums.

Howard Davis of Canfield was best man and Bud Wilson and Bob Leonard, cousins of the groom, of Austintown were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Carr wore steel grey satin with black accessories, while Mrs. Davis chose black trimmed with white. They both wore red rose corsages.

200 At Reception

The newlyweds greeted more than 200 people from Salem, Norfolk, Va., Youngstown, Austintown, Canfield and vicinity at their reception in the church.

Serving the refreshments and the cake were Mrs. Robert Leonard, Miss Marilyn Parker and Miss Dorothy Parker, aunts of the bride, and Miss Ilene Schrum of Austintown, cousin of the groom.

For their honeymoon to Niagara Falls and Canada, Mrs. Davis wore a wine velvet dress, black accessories and a white rosebud corsage. She will make her home with her mother, and her husband will return to Great Lakes Training Station.

The groom graduated from Fitch High School. Mrs. Davis is a graduate of Salem High School and is employed as an operator by the Bell Telephone Co.

The elder Davises entertained at the buffet rehearsal supper Friday evening in the Carr home on Newgarden Ave. Attendants of the bridal pair were honored with gifts.

CECIL CHAPMAN . . . The bell silhouette is illustrated charmingly in this slightly nostalgic short taffeta evening gown.

JANE DERBY . . . The bulky look favored for '52 by this designer shows up in a sweat shirt jacket of nubby white wool.

NETTIE ROSENSTEIN . . . The ankle-length evening gown is important this year. This one is a froth of black and white net.

HATTIE CARNEGIE . . . Chiffon stages a comeback in this beautifully draped gown of American Beauty red, with gauzy panels.

tives of the couple witnessed the nuptials performed by Rev. Harold B. Winn, church pastor.

An open Bible on the altar, palms, ivy and bouquets of white snapdragons and lilies made the background setting lighted by white tapers in candelabra. Candles and greenery also marked each window.

Plays Melodies

Miss Helen Steer of Damascus played the wedding melodies sung by Mrs. Harold Winn. Included were "Because," "Always" and "Through the Years." As the couple knelt she sang "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us." Prior to the sounding of the traditional marches, Miss Steer played "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, James Warren Carr. Her white satin gown was ballerina length and the skirt was fully made of satin with a not overskirt. The bodice top was fashioned of satin and lace net and the sleeves were fitted with a V at the wrists. The bride's collar of roll satin

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Iran Situation
Explained To Church Group

DR. JOHN ELDER, who has served in the Presbyterian mission field in Iran for 25 years, told members of the Presbyterian congregation Sunday what causes the trouble and confusion of that country.

The speaker said the only solution for Iran is a different faith. Besides the Islam religion which plays such a large part in the lives of the people, geography and historical background also play individual parts in the country's condition.

Women Illiterate

Due to the adherence to Islam, the women enjoy only one privilege—to select the mates for their children. They are 99 per cent illiterate with no hope of change under the present setup, Dr. Elder said.

According to the missionary, the British, prior to moving out of Iran, offered too little, too late. They tried to bolster the Islam creed to keep out communism which appeals to the downtrodden people and strangely enough to the intellectuals.

Reds Hold Grip

So-called appeal of communism listed by Dr. Elder comes through the communist propaganda promise of better health and education conditions, prosperity, no unemployment and the lightening of racial difficulties. Using this false structure the Reds do not have the answer, the speaker declared, for the people sooner or later learn the truth.

The "big lie" of Communism as promoted by them in Iran and elsewhere in the world is based on hate. This is direct contrast to the love and truth teachings of Christ, Dr. Elder declared.

In Communism an individual is valuable only as long as he or she conforms to the party line, the speaker concluded. Dr. Elder was a weekend guest in the home of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. McCulloch of Highland Ave.

Dr. Fred Jose Is Damascus'
First Doctor In Ten Years

Neighboring Damascus, without a doctor for 10 years, is finally getting one.

He is Dr. J. Fred Jose, formerly of Curtisville, Pa., an obstetrician and pediatrician who will tack up his shingle sometime this week.

Damascus has not had a doctor in the community since the death 10 years ago of Dr. Alfred R. Cobbs, who served the district faithfully for more than 40 years.

Dr. Jose, a graduate of Mount Union college, always has had a desire to return to this section of Ohio. Curtisville, where he has been practicing for the past 15 years, with time out for army medical service, is near Tarentum, Pa.

Dr. Jose, who was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh Medical School, interned at the Pittsburgh Medical Center, had his residency in obstetrics at Magee Hospital, Pittsburgh, and pediatrics at Children's Hospital, Pittsburgh.

As an army doctor, he spent 37 months in Europe.

Coincidentally, his office at Damascus will be in the Amstutz property used by the late Dr. Cobbs.

Dr. J. Fred Jose

Dr. Jose's wife, Helen, two sons, James, 13, Larry, 11, and daughter, Gwendolyn, 3, already are living in Damascus.

The doctor's hobby, when time permits, is hunting.

Will these be 1952's biggest stories?

You don't know now. But you do know that when they break, right that minute you'll want your newspaper.

Where else can you get the whole story so fast? So close to the event—so full of fact, detail and color . . . so quick with answers to "what led up to it?" and "what do they say about it?" and "where do we go from here?"

There's some story nearly every day that's big to you. So you want your newspaper as you want food and air.

You share that basic, essential hunger with everybody else. Your own suspense may be tied to the banner headlines . . . somebody else's may hang on a special in the white sales.

What medical discovery will make news in '52?

Will another "incurable" disease be conquered?

What surprises will the conventions bring? Who'll win Nov. 4?

What'll it mean to foreign aid, business, labor, the cost of living?

What'll it mean to foreign aid, business, labor, the cost of living?

What'll it mean to foreign aid, business, labor, the cost of living?

What'll it mean to foreign aid, business, labor, the cost of living?

But sometime each day everybody wants to see the newspaper. It's one thing people won't do without.

Why do advertisers spend more of their money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising?

Simply because everybody reads the newspaper every day—for its advertising as well as for fun or for news.

So—if you're selling something that's advertised, why should it be advertised to fractions of the people?

Radio and TV programs reach only fractions of anybody's market. Each one appeals to only a special audience. And even the people interested can't all listen.

Magazines reach only fractions of a market. For each one appeals to some people—not to others.

The newspaper talks to everybody in town—at the time they choose, for as long as they choose! The newspaper is first with the most news . . . the most people . . . the most advertisers!

The newspaper is always
"first with the most"

The Little Guy

By JAMES MARLOW

He Has Sense Of Drifting In 1952

WASHINGTON (AP)—THAT MAN OF THE YEAR, the little guy, any little guy going home this New Year's Eve after living through 1951, had a sense of drifting. He didn't know where.

There was a time when he walked from one year into another like a man going from room to room down a long hall, confident each new door would open upon a place more attractive than the one before.

He didn't feel that way about 1952. Maybe it was because he was getting older. Maybe as you grow older, he thought, a man's confidence about the future ebbs like the muscles in his arm.

But in his heart he didn't think it was that. He didn't feel old at all. He walked a little faster, very fast for a minute, just to prove to himself how quick he could be if he still had to be quick.

He tried to look back a bit on 1951, like pointing his glasses for a clearer look at 1952. He had been stuck a little, personally, by the events of 1951 but so had everyone else, or most everyone.

THE GOVERNMENT had controlled the wages. At the same time it raised the tax, and yet living costs kept going up slowly, like a balloon in a stream.

He didn't mind that—the man's hungry. He had a job—for he'd be willing to make any sacrifice gladly, if tomorrow any tomorrow, things would straighten out.

But that was it. That was the whole point. He was not sure he could in the whole world, could tell him positively that in his lifetime there would be any tomorrow different from today.

And what was today? It was simply time spent getting ready for war, it was time. War might never come. But so far as he could see into the future every day would have to be spent standing ready.

It was like walking on a street paved with dynamite which, no matter how carefully he himself picked his steps, might explode any minute.

So how could he plan, he thought, with any confidence he would live to shape the plan or, if he lived, with any hope the plan would not be lost in the smoke and fire?

He knew other men felt the same, on both sides of that thing they called the curtain. Yet everywhere, because everywhere men were caught up in this headlong rush to get ready for war, men were working.

It was a strange commentary on the wisdom of mankind, he thought that men could find full employment only when they were killing one another in a war or getting ready to.

THE THOUGHT chilled him. He thought: Suppose there is no war; suppose next month or next year there is peace somehow and men turn back to peaceful ways and peaceful thoughts. What then?

All over the world will factories shut down and will men, millions of them, tramp the streets again, looking for work, because there is a big market for the tools of war but not for the merchandise of peace?

That might be frightening, too, because he remembered the puzzled look of men who tried to look into the future and wondered whether the world would end in a bang or whimper.

But the little guy tried to look at the future straight as he could. If there were no war colors there, he didn't want to see war colors there. To help his vision he carried in his mind something Secretary of State Acheson once said about the problems ahead:

"They are like the pain of ending a living. They will stay with us until death."

"We have got to understand that all our lives the danger, the uncertainty, the need for alertness, for effort, for discipline will be upon us. This is new to us. It will be hard for us. But we are in for it"

'51 Had Brighter Days

BY RALPH PERRY

AP News Service Writer

The year 1951 had its bright moments.

The American Country Association announced there is enough country space in the United States to last 200 years. A survey at Hammond, Ind., showed 120,000 people in cemeteries; above, ground population 17,194.

A medical survey in the United States concluded that married people have fewer headaches than single people. That did not console.

A San Diego woman, who sued for divorce because her husband set fire to the papers she was reading.

James Olson of Fort Wayne, Ind., whose driving so riled his wife she suddenly threw the car keys out of the window. Olson jammed on the brakes and three cars were smashed up. He was charged with reckless driving, the second driver was charged with driving without a license, a third driver with improper registration.

At always, humankind in 1951 displayed its shining talents for being helpful, kind, courteous and somatic.

In Quincy, Mass., 40 runners in a 10-mile race jogged up to an intersection where two small boys kindly told them to go right, not left. The runners wound up on a dead-end street and the race was cancelled.

C. E. Good of Hertford, England, voted for his opponent and lost the election as alderman—by one vote.

In San Pedro, Calif., a plumber connected the gas pipe to the water outlet and the water pipe to the gas outlet.

"The State Senator from Maine" who addressed the Ohio legislature turned out to be an escaped patient from a mental hospital. An investigation of red tape disclosed that a single Vel-

As with all New Year's, some face it today with head held high and others can't lift theirs for at least another 24 hours.

But now that we have official, by launched the New Year the question is what are we going to do with it that we didn't do with the old one and probably won't do with this one either?

My barber says he didn't make any New Year's resolutions on the grounds that they might intimidate him but he has a secret bet with himself that it doesn't make any difference.

My dear old grandmother used to say "It's wonderful how people get busy in the last ten minutes of the year planning for the next year."

International Events Can Decide Election

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON (AP)—PRESIDENTIAL politics in 1952 will not be a cut-and-dried or traditional affair. What is forecast as of January will hardly be forecast as of May.

The issues that loom large now—tax, scandal, our corruption—may seem insignificant a few months hence if there is a sudden change in the international situation.

Candidates whose names seem important now as vote-getters may seem of secondary stature if the United States is plunged into a dangerous period of crisis.

A good illustration of how domestic issues can be relegated to a position of relative unimportance might have come last week. Suppose President Truman had decided to act firmly in the dispute over the arrest and imprisonment of the four American flyers by Hungary, and had demanded their release without paying the ransom. Suppose Russia then had stimulated Hungary to make an arrogant and defiant response. The United States would have been today in an entirely different mood, politically speaking, and there would have been a tendency everywhere to rally behind the President and back him up in whatever steps he had decided to take to uphold American prestige in the world.

The future may bring many such incidents. It is unlikely that the Russians will pass up their opportunity to muddy the waters here in the next few months. A mistaken theory exists that the Russians are stupid about all this and that they might well avoid taking any measures that would cause the American people to become united. But the probabilities are that Russia isn't interested in how united or disunited the American people are but what the effect of American action will be upon European peoples and countries closer to the Iron Curtain. The more belligerent America gets, the more the Communists expect a weakened Europe to respond with pacifism and apply the restraints which our Allies applied in Korea.

RUSSIA KNOWS the kind of policies the Democratic administration will pursue. Moscow knows that her strategists can needle America and go very far now without risking war because the American people have been told that it is better to accept peace at any price in Korea or elsewhere than to take any calculated risk that might mean war, especially because Europe is divided and unready.

Will the Republican spokesmen criticize the Korean policy and the payment of the ransom to Hungary and recommend as an alternative a more drastic policy that would risk war? It is on the answers to questions such as these that the whole trend of the political campaign will turn.

Foreign policy in all its many phases will be the primary issue in the coming campaign for the simple reason that it will be to the advantage of the Democrats to make it the issue. The Democrats want the Republicans to nominate Senator Taft because, while he isn't an isolationist, he can be expected to advocate policies with less involvement internationally than those of Mr. Truman. In such a debate, the Democrats expect to have the advantage.

So now that former Governor Stassen has announced his candidacy, it is important only as he will indicate what his foreign policy would be if elected. Curiously enough, the supporters of Eisenhower are not looking forward to any handicaps in the debate on foreign policy if the general is the nominee. They think the American people will expect him to carry forward the good in the present policies and improve upon them. The Eisenhower backers expect the most persuasive argument for their candidate to be that he can harmonize viewpoints as between European countries, that he can harmonize American and European viewpoints, and that he can promote domestic harmony because this faculty of reconciling opposite viewpoints is one of the basic characteristics of his personality.

IT IS TOO soon to say whether Stassen's entry in the race will hurt or help the Eisenhower candidacy. Harold Stassen is obviously in the race for his own purpose, and in the long run his views will tend to synchronize much more with those of Eisenhower than those of Senator Taft.

It needs to be remembered that the problem of any Republican nominee is easy when it comes to holding Republican votes but it is not so easy when he has to gain a considerable number of persons who have been voting for the New Deal and the Fair Deal heretofore. It is an open question how many Democrats have been converted lately to conservatism on domestic questions or to limited action in the international field.

Health To You

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M.D.

Medical Care Needed For Pernicious Anemia

UP to 1926 victims of pernicious anemia almost always died from it; anyone who had this disease of unknown cause lived on the average only a little over three years after the onset.

Today, death from pernicious anemia in the properly treated patient is rare. A person with pernicious anemia has difficulty in telling when the symptoms first started because they develop so gradually. Usually the first feeling is one of languor, or lack of pep.

The face becomes pale, the whites of the eyes look pearly, the muscles seem to be flabby, the pulse is soft and large but has a slight jerk, especially when the person is excited.

An uncomfortable feeling of fatigue appears on even slight exertion. The whole surface of the body looks whitened, smooth and rather waxy.

When the disease goes untreated, the paleness becomes worse and worse. A small amount of swelling is likely to develop around the ankles; the appetite fails. Eventually the sickness may become so severe that the patient cannot even rise from bed.

Symptoms such as these, although typical of pernicious anemia, are not sufficient to make a diagnosis. The diagnosis is made principally on the results of the examination of the blood under the microscope and on the absence of acid in the stomach secretion.

The famous physician and research scientist, Whipple, laid the foundation for the conquest of the disease by his careful studies on dogs.

Following Whipple's fundamental research work, two Boston physicians, Minot and Murphy, introduced the treatment of pernicious anemia with liver.

After reporting a small group of patients who had improved following liver treatments, these workers and others went on to prove beyond any doubt the value of liver.

When diagnosis is made early and liver treatments started promptly, the results are almost always good. Liver by injection or by mouth is standard treatment today.

Liver will prevent the progress of the disease and restore the vigor of those afflicted with this kind of anemia.

The conquest of this highly fatal disease is a real triumph of combined medical research in the laboratory and on patients.

Even further improvement in treatment have come from the discovery of crystalline vitamin B-12 and perhaps even this is not the end.

Open Letter To New Year Child

NEW YORK

AN OPEN LETTER to any child born on New Year's Day:

Welcome to the world, kid. Something new has been added—you! And we need you. The drinks are on the house today. What'll you have—milk?

You arrived with a cry; you'll leave with a sigh. Years and years from now. The first thing you got was a spank on the bottom, and you'll spend the rest of your life trying to earn a pat on the back.

It's a strange wonderland you came into, isn't it? Everything is warm and soft and cozy. But already you've got troubles—big monsters in white coating at you, picking you up, setting you down, wrapping you and unwrapping you as if you were something being exchanged at a department store.

SET UP A CRY, kid. Get redfaced and indignant. You'll be doing it a lot later, too. There's plenty to be indignant about.

And your eyes—they don't focus yet, do they? You can't even see what's across the room? Don't worry. The human race has been trying for 25,000 years to see beyond its own nose—and only a few have the vision to.

That's right, young fellow. Drowse off for a while. Rest up. You'll be awake for a long, long time. People ought to get more sleep as children now. They're living longer all the time.

Do you find it odd to be alive? Well, you probably always will. It's such an odd, unpredictable rhythm of pain and pleasure, despair and wonder—this being a prisoner in the pattern of time.

Would you like to know what lies ahead? That's easy. Here's the usual formula:

FIRST YOU GROW up, then you start growing down. You gum your milk now, then you get teeth, then the teeth hurt and you pull them out, and then you gum it the rest of the way. The same thing with your hair. You haven't got much of it, but you'll get more. You'll spend a small fortune on it, pampering it, cutting it, combing it. And then the ungrateful stuff will turn grey and fall off on the floor, leaving you right back where you are today.

And your bones and sinews? You can't count on them either. They'll grow and get stronger, then they'll play traitor to you, too, as weakness creeps back into them.

What can you count on to endure in your new home of flesh? Somewhere in it is something called a mind, and it is this that will give you most joy or most hurt, become your strongest friend or an interior enemy that will destroy you. Feed it when you are young, however, and it will sustain you when you are old.

WHAT LIES AHEAD, kid? Well, growing pains and puppy love, sunsets and tight shoes, matrimony and the installment plan . . . work, play and death . . . the old human drama, as old as the Garden of Eden, as new as you.

Peace blankets you now, but you have come into a world where the war of the guided missile is giving way to wars of the guided missiles.

No child in history ever was born on a more hopeful morning—or faced a more terrible night. It will be your job in your day to make or break the long dreams of mankind. Good luck kid. And a happy new '52 at the start of a Happy New Year!

Sincerely,

Hal Boyle.

ARE YOU SURE
YOU'RE AGAINST COMMUNISM?

MAYBE YOU ARE ONE OF THE MANY PEOPLE WHO UNKNOWINGLY ENDORSE
THE PRINCIPLES OF KARL MARX

WHY NOT CHECK YOURSELF WITH THESE FACTS!

1. THE BASIC PURPOSE OF COMMUNISM IS —

TO DEPRIVE THE INDIVIDUAL OF HIS RIGHT TO PRIVATE PROPERTY
—SO ALL PROPERTY CAN BE OWNED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

2. IN 'THE COMMUNIST MANIFESTO', KARL MARX RECOMMENDED
SEVERAL WAYS TO DO THIS. ONE OF THEM WAS —

'THE ABOLITION OF ALL RIGHT OF INHERITANCE'

NOW LOOK WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO THE RIGHT OF INHERITANCE. IN AMERICA —

IN 1916, THE MAXIMUM FEDERAL TAX ON INHERITANCE WAS — 10%

BY 1950, THIS TAX
HAD JUMPED TO 77%

THAT'S A GAIN FOR COMMUNISM OF 67% IN 34 YEARS!
HOW MANY MORE YEARS WILL IT BE UNTIL INHERITANCE IS COMPLETELY ABOLISHED, AS RECOMMENDED BY KARL MARX?

TO STOP COMMUNISM IN AMERICA
WE MUST UNDERSTAND AND
INSIST ON A MORAL PURPOSE
FOR OUR GOVERNMENT!

COMMUNIST IDEAS are not wrong just because they are Communist. They are wrong because they are immoral. For a Communist government, instead of protecting the individual's rights to Life, Liberty and Property, uses its power to take away these rights.

These rights are God-given rights, given to each man with the responsibility for his own existence. Any government that fails to protect the individual's rights to Life, Liberty and Property or that sets these rights aside for any purpose, is immoral.

SO, THE PURPOSE OF A MORAL GOVERN-MENT MUST BE:

"TO MAKE AND ENFORCE LAWS
WHICH PROTECT EVERY INDIVIDUAL'S
GOD-GIVEN LIFE, LIBERTY AND PROP-ERTY FROM THE INTERFERENCE OF ANY OTHER INDIVIDUAL OR GROUP
—AND THESE LAWS MUST ALSO PRO-TECT PEOPLE FROM GOVERNMENT ITSELF."

It is this purpose that Communism denies. It is this purpose that we must understand and demand for our government if America is to be free.

Cabasmen Go Through Rough Session Monday

Coach John Cabas planned to put his Salem High School Quakers through a morning workout Tuesday to keep them in trim for a single game this weekend with the Ravens at Reventown.

Cabas held a hang-up practice session yesterday as seven 1951 graduates took on the Quakers for nearly 2 1/2 hours. The Alumni group, which topped the Cabasmen Saturday night, 66-54, had a rough time in matching the Salem cagers.

The local outfit is improving each time out and looked good yesterday against the Alumni. Bill Breith, 6'6" center, seems to improve every time he plays as he gets stronger on rebounding. The big senior cager was held down considerably by Jim Callahan but nevertheless got his share of rebounds for the Cabasmen yesterday.

Another improving cager is Wayne Harris, who now has seemed to gain his eye and is hitting constantly. The 6'2" Harris has 63 points to his credit, despite a poor game at New Castle when he only managed one point.

At the foul line the senior forward has missed just ten foul shots making 21 of 31 attempts for a shooting per cent of 67.7. From the field Harris totals 31 goals for 94 shots, a little bit under 23 per cent.

Working in secret, they sent their North and South squads through drills for the third annual Senior Bowl game, where the players get paid for their efforts. Winners receive $500 each and losers $400 each.

THIRTY-TWO of the 50 squadmen went through opening practice sessions. The remaining players will join them after the New Year's Day bowl games.

Brown, coach of the Cleveland Browns, and Owen, of the New York Giants, put their charges into the T-formation. Owen said his South team might also employ the A formation used by the Giants.

The North squad lost two of its top performers when Pat Cannamela Southern California guard, switched to the Hula Bowl in Hawaii, and Hugh McElhenny, Washington's powerful running back, was unable to make the trip here. Both starred in the East-West game in San Francisco.

BROWN PICKED up an unexpected replacement for Cannamela quickly, however, when big Bob Griffin, Arkansas' All South-West Conference utility lineman, got leave from the Marines to play.

Griffin worked out with the North squad only a few hours after getting off a plane from San Diego. Brown said he'd be used at both guard and tackle spots.

Loss of McElhenny and Cannamela might tilt the odds slightly in favor of the South.

1951 Basketball Season Scandals Involve Seven Schools, 31 Players

By FRANK ECK
AP Newfeature Sports Editor
NEW YORK—College basketball spent almost as much time in the courts as on the courts during a hectic year.

For a time, with the unearthing of fixed games involving gamblers and players, the sport drew bigger headlines than the Korean War, President Truman and General MacArthur. It was more far-reaching than the 1919 Black Sox baseball scandal.

BY EARLY December the mess had involved 31 present and former college players and seven schools. And there was no guarantee that all the culprits had been caught in the police dragnet. The schools involved were City College of New York, Long Island University, New York University, Manhattan, Kentucky, Bradley and Toledo, each a power in the sport.

Bribe master of a score of collegians was 47-year-old Salvatore T. Solazzo. He pleaded guilty to fixing games played in Madison Square Garden and drew a New York state prison sentence of from eight to 16 years. Fourteen collegians were sentenced simultaneously by Judge Saul S. Streit. Nine of them received suspended sentences, however. Sherman White, LIU's All-America center, was sentenced for one year.

JUDGE STREIT cited commercialism and over-emphasis in college sports, especially basketball and football. He charged that "athletes are bought and paid for" and that "Scholastic standards are evaded" by tricky and forgery.

Chronologically here's how the basketball scandal unfolded: JAN. 17—Manhattan College player Junius Kellogg reported a bribe offer that led to the arrest of Manhattan's 1949-50 co-captain. Three gamblers also held on bribery and conspiracy charges.

FEB. 18—Three CCNY players arrested on bribery charges. Also arrested were two gamblers, and NYU player and a former LIU player.

FEB. 19—Three LIU players confessed to accepting bribes. Feb. 20—LIU quits intercollegiate sports.

FEB. 20—The three LIU players admitted to collecting $18,500 in bribes to fix seven games. A total of $20,540 was recovered from three LIU and two CCNY players.

FEB. 25—Another CCNY player confessed to bribe acceptance. The player later admitted he received $3,000 for five fixed games.

MAR. 24—Former NYU player held as material witness. MAR. 27—Three more players from CCNY Cinderella team (1949-50 NCAA and Invitational tournament winners) arrested.

APR. 12—Arrest of former LIU player brings to 18 the number of players implicated. APR. 21—Another ex-LIU player arrested.

APR. 30—New York City Board of Higher Education bars CCNY and Brooklyn College from basketball in commercially operated arenas.

SHERMAN WHITE, 22, of LIU, regarded as the nation's top college player last season, is held by the arm of the law. He was sentenced to one year in jail for taking bribe money.

ers admitted to collecting $18,500 in bribes to fix seven games. A total of $20,540 was recovered from three LIU and two CCNY players.

FEB. 25—Another CCNY player confessed to bribe acceptance. The player later admitted he received $3,000 for five fixed games.

MAR. 24—Former NYU player held as material witness. MAR. 27—Three more players from CCNY Cinderella team (1949-50 NCAA and Invitational tournament winners) arrested.

APR. 12—Arrest of former LIU player brings to 18 the number of players implicated. APR. 21—Another ex-LIU player arrested.

APR. 30—New York City Board of Higher Education bars CCNY and Brooklyn College from basketball in commercially operated arenas.

JULY 23—Eight Bradley U. players admit taking bribes to fix games. (When the scandal broke, this team voted 11 to 1 against any Garden post-season games because of the taint of fixing in the big arena). JULY 24—Three Toledo players admit taking bribes.

NOV. 30—Three CCNY players ruled ineligible because college entrance marks were altered.

ADDING TO the screwy year for basketball, three Bradley players, not involved in scandal, up and left school the day their team was scheduled to open the 1951-52 season.

Kentucky was the No. 1 team. There was little doubt as Adolph Rupp's stars, paced by 7-foot Bill Spivey and floorman Frank Ramsey, drove to 32 victories in 34 games, including a 68-58 victory over Kansas State for the NCAA title at Minneapolis. The Wildcats became the only three-time NC AA winners in history.

BRIGHAM YOUNG won the 14th annual National Invitation tournament in the Garden by beating Dayton, 62-43, after a 2,200-mile journey from Provo, Utah.

The professional game had its own troubles. Referee Sol Levy an official for the National Basketball Association, was accused of taking $3,000 in help fix three games in November, 1950.

AS A RESULT of being involved in the college scandal, the NBA ruled out of its league, Ralph Beard and Alex Groza. Both former All-America players were playing with the Indianapolis Olympians when New York District Attorney Frank S. Hogan charged they had accepted money to throw a National Invitation game in the Garden in 1949.

The Rochester Royals won the NBA crown by beating the New York Knickerbockers, 79-75, in the seventh and deciding game of the finals. The season ran until April 21.

HERE IS THE FAMOUS PLAY of the Drake-Oklahoma A & M football game in which Johnny Bright received a fractured jaw. It was the first play from scrimmage. In the first picture Bright (43) has handed off to teammate (30), Wilbanks Smith (72) of the Aggies charges towards Bright. Hubert Cook (55), also of the Aggies, follows the ball carrier. In the next two pictures Smith, with raised fist, leaps at Bright. Cook, oblivious to the incident, continues to follow the ball carrier. Bright was knocked cold from the blow.

TV, Football Emphasis Spark Grid Season

NEW YORK—There were two kinds of college football during the year—the emphasize and the de-emphasizers.

Most schools placing an emphasis on the sport would appear to be those in favor of spring practice, the two-platoon system and bowl games. Those willing to de-emphasize in view of scandals and charges of commercialism would like to see these things abolished.

TELEVISION REARED its pretty or ugly head, depending on one's viewpoint. Some schools were for TV while others opposed it on the grounds it would "ruin gate receipts."

The Pacific Coast Conference voted against TV although the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day will be viewed over a national hookup.

IT SEEMS there were more "people on the 50-yard line" than ever. Games of national interest went to various parts of the country via TV. The National Collegiate Athletic Association called it controlled television to determine the impact on gate receipts. The issue is slated to come up at the NCAA convention in Cincinnati, Jan. 9-12.

THE UNIVERSITY of Pennsylvania announced it would revolt against the NCAA TV program. The NCAA then termed Penn "a member not in good standing."

Notre Dame challenged the NCAA curb on live television of games and its president contended the move was restored to good standing when it decided to abide by the NCAA ruling.

A CRIBBING SCANDAL at the U. S. Military Academy in which 90 cadets violated the West Point honor system code and a tirade by New York Judge Saul Streit had wide repercussions. At West Point 23 football players of the 1951 team were dismissed for cheating. A number of them enrolled at other colleges.

JUDGE STREIT stressed commercialism, and backed his charges with figures. He said football at the U. of Pennsylvania showed a profit of $461,000 in 1950, grossed $1,200,000 at Kentucky and $1,347,000 at Tennessee. He said Tennessee spent a quarter of a million dollars a year on its football program and that "no big league baseball club has a superior scouting and recruiting system."

Ironically Tennessee was voted No. 1 team in the nation in pre-season and post-season polls conducted by The Associated Press. Michigan State was ranked second. Other unbeaten major teams were Princeton, Maryland, Bucknell and San Francisco.

The William and Mary faculty charged that a sports scandal at the college was due to an ambitious athletic program that was "obscuring and corrupting." As a result of the situation, the college president and its football and basketball coaches resigned.

ST. MARY'S of California, Georgetown, Duquesne and Nevada were among the schools that quit the sport. Because of the Korean War, most conferences used freshmen on varsity teams.

Coach Paul Bryant, 37, was signed to a 12-year contract by the University of Kentucky as a reward "for his amazingly successful direction and for guiding university gridiron teams to the best record in terms of importance they have ever enjoyed." The Wildcats lost four games out of 11.

AN INCIDENT that resulted in a broken jaw for brilliant Drake halfback Johnny Bright left the Missouri Valley Conference with six teams instead of eight. Drake and Bradley quit the circuit when the league failed to take action against Oklahoma A. and M. Drake officials contended that Bright, a Negro, had been deliberately slugged by Aggie guard Wilbanks Smith. Pictures of the play seemed to bear out the charge. The two schools severed all athletic relations with Oklahoma A. and M.

Marquette severed relations with Tulsa as a result of the former's coach, Lisle Blackburn, charging Tulsa with "flagrant illegal tactics" in a game Tulsa won, 27-21. Oddly enough, it was the first time the schools had ever met.

A NEW TWIST developed at Denver University. Ernest Nemeth, a 24-year-old guard, demanded $200 "back salary" because he had been sidelined by injury during 1950 and missed a week of spring practice. Odd part about it was that he collected.

Even Dick Kazmaier, Princeton's All-America heralded as the nation's No. 1 player, sustained an injury. He suffered a broken nose in the final game against Dartmouth. Kazmaier led the nation in rushing and total offense, gaining 1,827 yards. He completed 82.6 per cent of his passes (77 out of 123).

About the biggest surprise of the season was Navy's 43-7 victory over an inexperienced Army team. It was the biggest score in 32 service clashes.

THE BIG BOWL game pairings are: Rose, Pasadena, Calif.-Illinois vs. Stanford.

Orange, Miami, Fla.—Georgia Tech vs. Baylor.

Sugar, New Orleans—Tennessee vs. Maryland.

Cotton, Dallas—Kentucky vs. Texas Christian.

CITY WORKERS GET RAISE
CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Heights added $67,000 to the city payroll today by granting 7.7 per cent pay raises to 500 employees. City Manager Henry M. Kimpel was upped from $12,600 to $13,250.
